CAR STOPS ON TRACKS, BURNS AFTER MISHAP

Galion Rail Worker and New London Woman Lose Lives on Crawford Detour.

CRESTLINE—Mrs. George Carnahan, 56, of New London, and Christian C. Champion, 54, New York Central railroad conductor, of Galion, were killed late last night when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by the eastbound Pennsylvania Rainbow Limited at a grade crossing on the Lake Galion road three miles west of Crestline.

Mrs. Carnahan, wife of George Carnahan, Pennsylvania railroad employe who lives in Galion, was thrown out of the automobile by the impact and was killed instantly, Crawford county deputy sheriffs said.

Car Catches Fire.

Champion, who lives at 141 Pierce street, Galion, was burned beyond recognition when the car caught fire after the crash. Champion's body was found by Crestline firemen, who were cooling the burned shell of the car.

The accident occurred at 11:37 p. m. as Mrs. Carnahan was driving back to New London after visiting her husband in Galion.

W. F. Sneed, of Crestline, watchman on duty at the crossing, told D. Carl Hocker, Crawford county deputy sheriff, who investigated

ORDERS CUT IN U. S. SPENDING

Truman Calls on Officials to Keep Expenditures 'at the Lowest Possible Levels.'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Truman today called on all federal officials to keep public expenditures "at the lowest possible level."

In a formal statement, Mr. Truman declared that reductions in federal expenditures are imperative in view of "the present inflationary situation."

The president's statement was contained in a letter to the heads of all executive departments and agencies. It said:

"We must do everything within our power to reduce inflationary pressures. One of the most effective means of doing this is to reduce federal expenditures."

The president made his statement public at a news conference at which he announced he will hold a news conference on the budget at the White House at 3 p. m. (EST) tomorrow.

The statement emphasized that the nation's present fiscal situation "is a most serious one."

"We are faced with a continued substantial budget deficit in the present year," it continued. "Even those federal expenditures which are most necessary have the effect of increasing inflationary pressures in the total national economy."

Mr. Truman asked public works agencies "to postpone commitments and actual construction so far as possible, and to keep their expenditure programs within certain specified totals."

He asked each of the departments to review expenditure programs and not to hesitate "to eliminate work of low priority," and to concentrate even on "smaller economies."

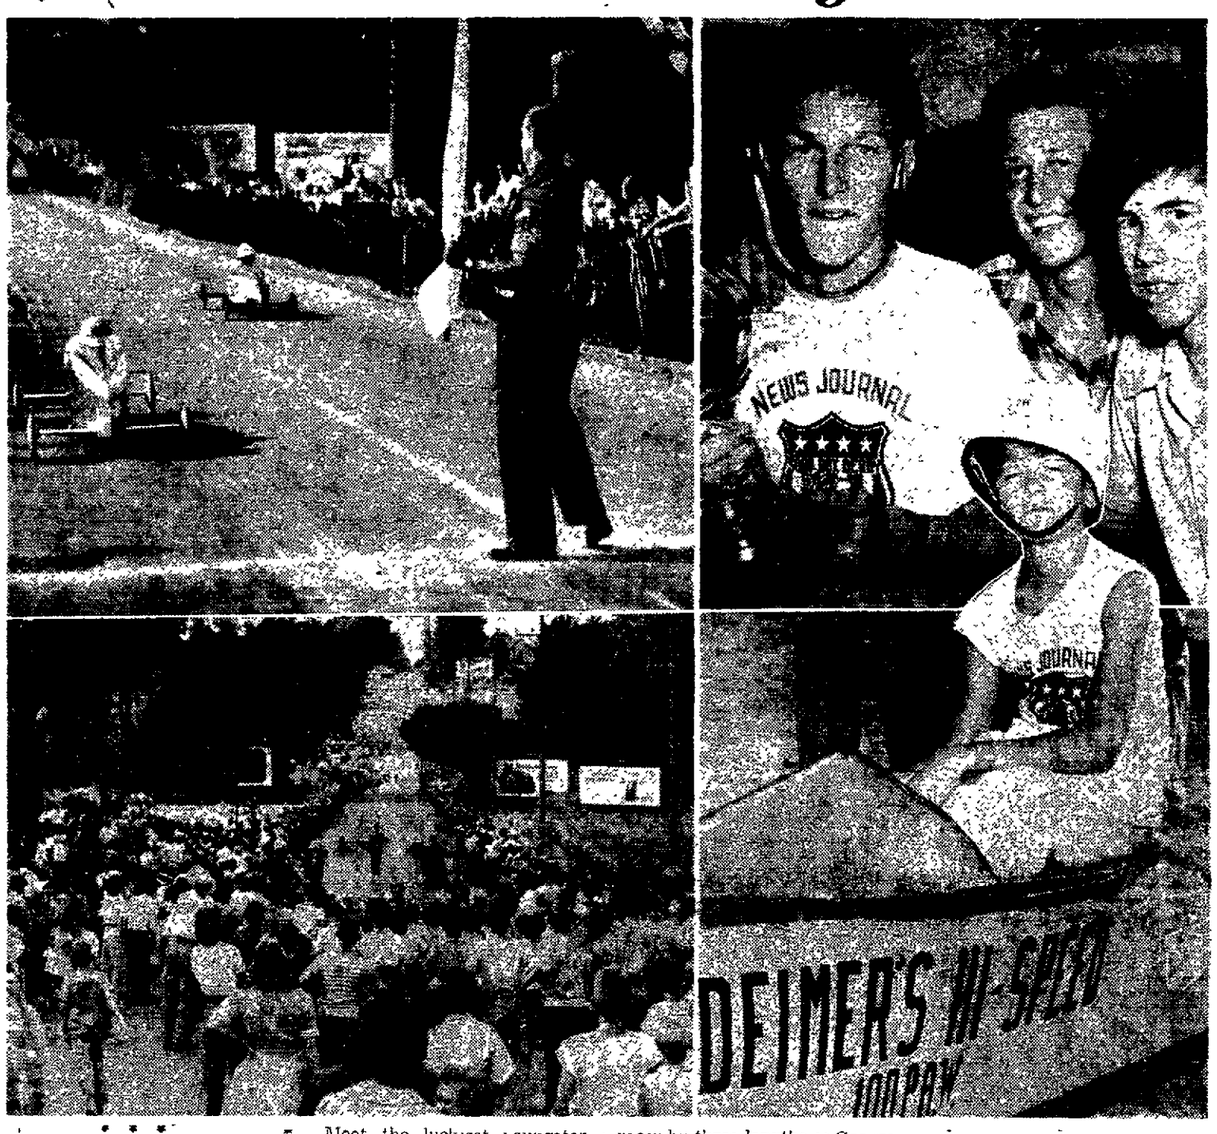
Mr. Truman's statement followed disclosure of a solid front presentation by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz against any further cuts in army and navy budgets.

Thinks Congress Might Not Adjourn

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley said today there is "a fair chance" that congress will not adjourn tomorrow as planned.

Barkley said he would hold off submitting the house-approved adjournment resolution to the senate until he sees what can be worked out on the social security bill and world court resolutions.

6,000 See Kindinger Win Derby



Meet the luckiest youngster in Mansfield. He is the 1946 News-Journal Soap Box Derby champion—Marlin Kindinger. The 15-year old Lincoln Heights youth cruised past the finish line six-times yesterday afternoon on Derby hill (South Main street road below Chilton avenue) to win the coveted all-expenses-paid trip to the All-American finals in Akron and a dozen other prizes. Upper left, the sleek "Marlin Special" leads Judson Butler's yellow and red racer by three lengths as George Donges starts the checkered flag on its way down in the final race. Upper right, Kindinger, proudly holds his General Motors gold-plated trophy with his brother, Gene, (center) Derby champ in 1939, and another buddy looking on. A portion of the crowd of 6,000 is shown lower left. Wearing a slightly puzzled look is 12-year-old Judson Butler, (lower right) who copped four Class B races and missed the Derby "bonanza" by about 15 feet.

CROWD COMES EARLY, CHEERS

6,000 Spectators Hail Races in 'Big Top' Atmosphere; Fence Claims 2 Drivers.

By HAL CLAWSON

Mansfield's fifth running of the soap box derby wasn't a three-ring circus but it took on most of the aspects of the big top.

Many of the 6,000 fans started arriving at 12:30 p. m. Main street was a steady stream of traffic from that time on with many of the spectators walking out to the course.

It was quite a sight for those at the bottom of the hill to look up at the top and watch the eager spectators swarm onto the racing strip just after the racers left the starting ramp.

Although the county had erected a snow fence on both sides of the track, it didn't keep a lot of the people off the hill.

Two state highway and two city motorcycle patrolmen paced the racers down the hill to get the spectators back off the track.

Typical of most sports events, the crowd had its favorites. Cheers

Cleveland Seeks Additional Iron Lung as Cases Grow.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Cleveland health authorities sought an additional respirator today, to aid in the battle against infantile paralysis as the number of cases in the area rose to 72.

Dr. Harold J. Knapp, city health commissioner, said the state health department had agreed to meet his request to send another iron lung to City hospital. He did not say when the respirator would be delivered.

The commissioner said the hospital's respirator facilities were "strained" by the large number of cases handled there.

FIND GIRL'S BODY

ONSET, Mass. —(AP)— Police Chief Chester A. Churchill reported that the body of pretty Ruth McGurk, 25-year-old vacationist from Cambridge sought since she disappeared from a dance hall Saturday night, was found today in a reservoir ten miles from here.

Promises to Aid City Get More Air Service

McGregor Says He'll Attempt to Speed CAA Action On Requests to Use New Mansfield Port.

Congressman J. Harry McGregor, completing two days of interviews with Richland countians in Mansfield today, told the News-Journal he would take steps to speed government approval of applications of air lines to provide the city with plane service.

Three major air lines—United, Eastern, and Trans-World—are seeking to serve the city through its new airport but their applications have been tied up for weeks in government red tape.

McGregor said he would have his secretary start looking into the air lines' applications in Washington today and would report on his findings in a day or two. The applications were filed with the Civil Aeronautics Authority many months ago.

Richland countians in almost a steady stream filed into the common pleas courtroom yester-

Says AFL Will Get In Politics

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The American Federation of Labor will form a Political Action Committee of its own to "inject new blood into congress," AFL President William Green said here today.

Green, in an address to the glass bottle blowers of the United States and Canada, said the AFL would organize a campaign to bring out "the 7,000,000 AFL voters" in the approaching elections.

LIE WARNS OF U. N. FAILURE

Declares Veto Power Obliges Big Nations to Agree Among Selves.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, warned today that the organization has failed to measure up to expectations and that the power of veto imposes an obligation upon the Big Five nations to agree among themselves.

"As in the control of atomic power the choice is between life and death", Lie declared in a work summary report to the UN general assembly. "The failure of the United Nations would mean the failure of peace, the triumph of destruction."

Without mentioning specifically Russia's frequent use of her veto power in the security council, Lie pointed out that many issues before the council had arisen from an inability to agree, and he added:

"I should be failing in my duty, in presenting this report, if I did not emphasize the absolute necessity that the powers should seek agreement among themselves in a spirit of mutual understanding and a will to compromise, and not abandon their efforts until such an agreement has been reached."

YUGOSLAVS BALK

PARIS —(AP)— The Yugoslav delegation served notice at the peace conference today that it would not accept the compromise solution on Trieste.

MARLIN WHIPS OVER LINE IN 31 SECONDS

Brother of '39 Winner Sets Record as He Edges Out Judson Butler.

By FRED THARP

A sleek-silver "Marlin Special" whistled across the finish line in front of a low-slung red and yellow coaster to give Marlin Kindinger the title of 1946 Soap Box Derby champion yesterday afternoon on Derby Hill.

It wasn't the first time that the mantle of champion had been worn by a Kindinger. In 1939, Marlin's brother Gene was crowned Derby champ.

Marlin, a typical American boy, sent his trim speedster humming past the checkered flag six times to thrill the crowd of 6,000 that jammed South Main street below Chilton avenue for the Mansfield edition of "the greatest amateur racing event in the world."

Little Judson Butler, pilot of the streamlined yellow and red job that lost to the "Marlin Special" in the final heat, rolled smoothly down the racing strip to eliminate four opponents in the Class B division.

'Kick Does It.'

The 12-year-old Butler made quite a race of it in the final but the terrific "kick" of the "Marlin Special" was the deciding factor. Kindinger's racer, best balanced creation in the field of 49 cars, always reached its maximum speed at the bottom of the course and won going away on the upsweep.

His time in the final was 31 seconds.

Fifty heats were run between 2 and 5 p. m.

Last night at the Madison theater, Kindinger and Butler, backed by the other Derby pilots, got a fine welcome in the acclamation ceremonies. Both pulled down approximately 15 prizes with Kindinger getting the all expenses

Waits 7 Years For His Dream To Come True

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Dreams were made and dreams were broken yesterday afternoon on a 800-foot speedway on South Main street hill, but for 15-year-old Marlin Kindinger of Lincoln Heights the dream came true after a seven-year wait.

Before an estimated crowd of 6,000 spectators the shy youth piloted his "Marlin Special" over the finish line in 31 seconds flat to win the championship of the first News-Journal Soap Box Derby in five years.

In 1939 he had watched his elder brother, Gene, win the city's title. He was nine then; the age minimum was 10 years. The next year, the age minimum was 11 years; Marlin was 10. Yesterday was his last chance to win it as well as his first chance, and he made it in the best time clocked on all 49 racers.

"Gee!" was all that he said when spectators, other contestants and photographers gath-

Exhume Body of Poison Victim

COLUMBUS — (UP) — The body of Daniel Enslow, 15-year-old victim of drowning while under effects of poison, was exhumed at Fremont and parts of the body removed for further investigation, Assistant Prosecutor T. Vincent Martin said here today.

Martin said a week or 10 days would be required before any definite finding could be made. Some food content was found in the stomach. The autopsy was performed under the direction of Dr. John B. Gravis, Franklin county coroner, by the light of automobile headlights and two flashlights last night.

Woman Slain As She Picks Blackberries

Husband Falls to Ground Beside Wife In Shooting on Ashland County Farm; Children Nearby; Farmer Held Without Bond.

(Special to The News-Journal)

ASHLAND—"Roger, he's got a gun!"

Those were the last words of Mrs. Roger McKinley, 26-year-old Jeromesville mother of three children, as she looked up from a blackberry bush on the Charles E. Briggs farm in Lake township at 7 p. m. yesterday.

A second after she had spoken, Mrs. McKinley fell with a bullet through her head.

Today, Charles E. Briggs, 62, owner of the farm was being held in Ashland county jail, in connection with the shooting but no charges had been filed at noon according to Ashland County Prosecutor C. W. Chorpening. Briggs' gun, a single shot .22 caliber rifle, was being held as Exhibit A.

Briggs, a resident of the vicinity for the past 11 years, was arrested by Ashland Deputy Sheriff William Schindler, and William Heifner, Jeromesville constable, at 8 p. m. He was being held without bond.

Roger McKinley, husband of the dead woman, related details of the shooting today to the Ashland sheriff's department.

According to his statement, he and his wife and three small children, ages five, three and two years, had driven a small truck to the Briggs' farm near the blackberry patch. McKinley said that he and his wife had left the three children behind in the truck, which he parked on the road, near the berry patch.

McKinley said he saw Briggs drive down the road in an auto, get out and shoot toward where the couple were picking berries.

CHARLES E. BRIGGS

McKinley said that he fell to the ground along with his wife when the shot was fired. When his wife did not get up, he found she had been hit in the head and was unconscious. He said he rushed up to Briggs and told him that he had shot his wife.

McKinley said he first took his wife to the home of his father, Edward McKinley, nearby. Leaving the children there, he rushed her to the office of Dr. A. D. Lewis in Jeromesville for medical treatment. Dr. Lewis, who is also Ashland county coroner, said that the woman "appeared to have died on his examination table" a few seconds after her husband had brought her in.

Mrs. McKinley's body was removed to the Fickes funeral home in Jeromesville pending funeral arrangements.

Ashland county sheriff's office today reported that Briggs said he "did not intend to kill anyone" when he was apprehended—that he "merely meant to shoot over their heads."

Fired From Hill.

Officers said that Mrs. McKinley was picking blackberries in a ravine and that Briggs was standing on a hill when he fired the fatal shot. Briggs said that he had been bothered by chicken and hog thieves.

Schindler said that when Briggs was arrested, he was in possession of a .22 caliber single shot rifle. There was an unfired shell in the chamber at the time of the arrest Schindler said.

Schindler said Briggs handed over the gun when he was arrested and said, "This is it."

Prosecutor Chorpening said that Briggs and the McKinleys were not acquainted. He said that charges would be filed soon and a preliminary hearing held.

AGREES TO TALK

Mystery Man Fields to Tell How He Got Wire Screen.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Benjamin F. Fields, mystery man of the Garsson munitions combine, suddenly has agreed to tell congressional investigators how he obtained scarce wire screening supposedly reserved for veterans housing.

Fields, it was learned consented to relate his story today to investigators for a house committee on surplus property. The conference was scheduled to be held behind closed doors in the office of Committee Counsel Hugh Wise, who said Fields agreed to appear only on condition he would not be served with a subpena to testify before the committee itself.

The committee issued a subpena for him last week, but had not been able to locate him. One committee member said there was "something very peculiar" about the whole incident.

Bitter Sergeant's Ready to Testify How Bad Shells Killed His Own Men

States Check of Morning Reports Would Reveal Number of Deaths.

MEADVILLE, Pa.—(INS)—A former first sergeant who saw two of his men killed and a few hours later identified a third who had been fatally wounded by a defective 42 mortar shell in Germany today said bitterly he was willing to testify before the Mead committee.

Harry E. Randall of Meadville, a purple heart veteran and ex-first sergeant of the 81st Chemical Mortar battalion, said the first two men were killed when a mortar shell exploded prematurely in the barrel of the gun. The blast occurred while his outfit was supporting the 90th infantry division during the bloody crossing of the Moselle river.

The sergeant said:

"Twelve hours later, I was called to identify another of my men who was killed in a similar explosion four miles away."

Randall said the men didn't have a chance, adding:

"I've got the names of those lads, but I don't want to make them public because relatives of one has been corresponding with me for details of the explosions."

Randall, whose mortar battalion served with 14 different divisions in the late Gen. George S. Patton's Third army, said that the two explosions also injured several men.

"We had just crossed the Moselle and I got orders to fire in support of the 90th. The first shell that was dropped into the Cram Heads Event.

W. A. Brandenburg, honorary chairman, made the presentations assisted by hard-working Don Cram, derby director. John Catlett emceed the ceremonies last night and acted as starter yesterday afternoon.

Second and third place winners in Class A and B each received five awards and heat winners got minor prizes. All drivers were guests of the Madison after the ceremonies.

David Guy, Class A second-placer, received a silver medal, travel case, year's membership to the YMCA, tool kit and fishing set while the third-place driver, Bruce Wilging, got a bronze medal, year's membership to the "Y," archery set, bill fold and ball glove.

Jay Stover and Carl Jordan placed second and third in Class B. Their prizes were duplicates of those awarded to Guy and Wilging.

Kindinger's racer was consistent in the heats. He won four with times of 31.1 seconds, slipped to 31.3 in beating James Klopfenstein, Crestline, who won the prize for the best designed racer, and set a new record of 31.0 in the final race against Butler. The Class B champ's best time was 32.2.

Nips Wilging.

David Guy, a darkhorse, nipped Bruce Wilging, one of the pre-race favorites, to win second honors in Class A. Wilging eliminated Klopfenstein to gain third place honors.

In the Class B division, Jay Stover was second and Carl Jordan topped Franklin Snavely in a run-off for third place.

The 49 entrants were driven by youths from Mansfield, Shelby, Lexington, Crestline, Bellville and Willard.

Interrupted for four years by the war, the derby was resumed in 110 American cities this summer. These champions will converge on Akron Derby Downs for the national finals.

The News-Journal, Brandenburg Chevrolet company and the YMCA sponsored the Mansfield Derby.

SEATTLE—(U.P.)—Dr. Joseph E. Henderson of the University of Washington said nuclear research in the schoool's physics labratories would be immensely widened by use of radio active by-products of the nation's atomic bomb plants. muzzle wrecked the gun and killed the two men. Three were wounded."

Randall said that on Nov. 17, 1944, twelve hour later, he was called to identify a soldier who met a similar fate in the second platoon.

Randall said that he had heard reports in France and Germany that scores of other soldiers had been killed by defective mortar shells.

Randall said:

"If the Mead committee is really sincere and wants to know the death toll and who manufactured the shells, all they have to do is check the morning reports in the adjutant general's office in Washington.

"They'll find the names of hundreds of troops fatally wounded by such shells. It'll give them the approximate time, place and identification of the soilder, too."

Randall added that the committee members should have no trouble determining the manufacturers of the shells. He said all they have to do is look up the war contract number and compare it with the number on the shell—and they've got it.

Housing Problems Hit Film Star Same as Just Anybody

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Susan Hayward is, she announced today with a bored yawn, getting kicked out of her house again. This makes the fourth time in a year and she doubts if it'll be the last. You see, she has twin boys.

"They're a year and a half old now," Miss Hayward explained. "Definitely the writing-on-the-wallpaper age."

This moving business comes under the ho-hum department for the carrot-topped actress and husband, Jess Barker. They've been evicted so often lately they don't even bother to unpack any more.

And Miss Hayward doesn't even get excited. Just accepts the inevitable.

Takes It Calmly.

"We'll find some place," she says nonchalantly. "We always do. Usually a week before we're due to get dumped out on the street, twins and all."

And this time, the twins' beautiful mama thinks, they'll sweat it out until a week before the deadline. Then they'll find a house. So why knock yourself out worrying? She's that calm about it.

"My friends all go frantic," she grinned. 'But I'm psychic. And after all, they can't just move us out on the curb. We have to live some place!"

But the Hayward-Barker menage is expanding into what the no-children-and-no-pet landlords call the "undesirable class."

"Up to now I could say to them, 'But our children are just babes in arms. They couldn't hurt your house at all.'" Miss Hayward said. "But with this eviction things are different."

Now the twins, red-haired Gregory and blond Timothy, get around on their own four legs, thank you. They're no more destructive than any other 18-month-old boys, according to their mother. But landlords won't even wait to hear about their talents.

"The first time we had to move was out of our honeymoon apartment," Miss Hayward explained. "There was barely room enough to squeeze in all our wedding presents. Let alone twins and their equipment."

Even then landlords were allergic to a nursery set-up. Miss Hayward and Barker had to board the kids out at the hospital for three weeks before they found a house.

"It was a lovely one in Bel-Air," she reminisced. "But we didn't get to keep it long."

Came the next eviction notice and Barker found another house a week before the deadline. Miss Hayward wangled a day off from Producer Walter Wanger and moved her bassinettes, rattles, etc., amid great flurry and confusion.

The last time she had to move play-pens and toys and high chairs. Next month it'll be kiddy cars and rocking horses. The routine gets more complicated every time.

MAN'S WORLD

Women Outnumbered 3 to 1 at Ohio University.

ATHENS — (INS) — Those who complain that women have usurped man's world, can find happiness this summer on the Ohio university campus at Athens.

There it's definitely a man's world, by a ratio of three to one!

Some 1,204 men already have enrolled for the eight-weeks session. All but 100 of them are former servicemen. It is the first time in the school's 142 years that the women have been outnumbered.

More food is wasted annually by delays and inefficiencies in marketing in the United States than was consumed annually by our armed forces and lend-lease shipments combined during the war.

Murderer Makes Junior Better Companion Than Chronic Petty Thief, Says Professor

By DON SMITH

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — If you want a vacation playmate for Junior, pick a murderer. Junior couldn't have a safer companion.

However, don't send the boy to the seashore with a chronic petty thief or Junior is liable to become just a memory.

That's what Prof. Horace B. English teaches a non-criminal psychology class at Ohio State university.

Prof. English, who has a spotless teaching record, maintained here today that murderers rate as some of the safest people in the world, mainly because they're a "one crime man."

"Once they've murdered, they're very unlikely to kill again or to commit any other crime," English said. It's the chronic petty thief who is the greater menace to society, he claimed.

Our courts and laws use the wrong approach to the crime problem today, English said. And as long as they do, he said, we will be plagued with a great number of crimes.

"As soon as a man commits a crime, the reaction is to get even with him, send him away, punish him," he said. "We must do away with that 'get even' attitude."

"Once a man is convicted of a crime—whether it be for murder or for stealing a postage stamp—he should be sent to prison for an indefinite term and released only when it is believed safe to return him to society," English said.

English said the man should be examined by criminologists, psychiatrists and psychologists while he is in prison.

"You know something is wrong with our present system when you realize that more than 40 per cent of the paroled prisoners are returned to serve out another offense," he asserted.

"Increasing the penalties for crimes won't help," he said. "It's not the fear of the death penalty that keeps people from killing. States without the death penalty generally have a lower murder rate than states that do," English said.

Child murderers released from the Ohio State Bureau of Juvenile Research never have committed another murder, he said.

It is estimated that bees collecting nectar for one pound of honey will travel a distance equivalent to almost three times around the earth.

Mansfielder Was Air Forces' First Military Pilot

.T. LAHM FLEW ARMY PLANE 37 YEARS AGO

ittle Ship Was First Unit of Nation's Air Fleet, 39 Years Old Today.

By LARRY MURPHY

Thirty-nine years ago today he U. S. Army Air Forces, vhich has just smashed 20 ll-time world's records in peed, duration, distance and oad altitude, was born as a tep-child of the Signal corps.

Known then as "the Aeronautcal section," it made a humble tart with one officer, two enlisted nen, and no planes, and bids were sked on a plane capable of remaining in the air one hour with wo men aboard.

Two years later, however, Mansfield's Lt. Frank P. Lahm became the first military pilot to fly the first military plane purchased by the U. S. government.

Today the U. S. Army Air Force s the greatest in the world after tringing along as an "also-ran" n world aviation until 1940, and .t. Lahm has become a brigadier general and retired from a lifeime of service to the air force in vhich he pioneered.

It was on Aug. 28, 1908, that the Wright brothers delivered to the rmy at Ft. Myer, Va., a crude iplane with a 25-horsepower automobile-type engine, built in one nonth in a bicycle shop at a cost of $30,000. Top speed of the flyng machine was 40 m.p.h. and its ange was 125 miles.

Orville Wright, the pilot, was njured and Lt. Thomas E. Selfridge, a passenger, was killed in September of the same year during an experimental "hop," but he far-sighted U. S. army was patient and ordered another plane.

In this, the first military plane, Lt. Lahm became the first AAF pilot after three hours of instruction by Wilbur Wright at College Park, Md., on Oct. 26, 1909.

The plane, later used on field maneuvers, was equipped with skids and launched by means of a weight falling from a tower which pulled the machine along a short rail or runway.

By 1910 the air arm of the War department had increased to three officers and nine enlisted men with one pusher-type plane and three balloons, and a year later congress saw fit to appropriate $25,000 for three additional planes.

The first aerial bomb, dropped in actual warfare was a handmade affair exploded in a bandit camp against Pancho Villa during the Mexican revolution, in 1916.

At the close of the first World war in 1918, military aviation was removed from the Signal corps and a U. S. Army Air services was formed.

In addition to Lahm, several other Mansfielders helped pioneer in military aviation, among them Roy B. Gardner, Alan P. Tappan, and James L. Zimmerman.

"Mud" Gardner, who has been a member of the air forces since June 6, 1919, flew with the 13th Squadron, Second Pursuit group, in France during World War I when the army had more pilots than planes overseas. In those days Yankee pilots had only French Neuports or Spads, and English planes to fly.

With the development of an air force during the war into the world's largest a special day was set aside to commemorate its founding which was zealously celebrated, even in combat, with a mighty show of strength.

Ex-AAF Sgt. John W. Mine of 578 Marion avenue remembers last year's AAF Day celebration vividly, as he was a part of it on Saipan island in the Pacific:

"A year ago today," he recalled, "the Army Air Forces REALLY celebrated . . . with a 1,000-plane B-29 attack on Japan. It was the largest mission up to that time. Previously outfits had been struggling to keep 700 and 800 planes over the target because B-29's were still not abundant then."

Today's modern air force which a Mansfielder pioneered and others helped to develop is a far cry from one crude crate called a biplane, with which the AAF began.

Equipped with the latest in radar, AAF planes can now fly in storm zones, chart the course and speed of approaching hurricanes, and rush the data to weather stations in time to avert tragedy.

Side by side with technological progress goes the AAF's vital duty of preserving world peace and national security. The nation's safety, in a world where distance now means little, rests with the men who fly.

Commanding General Carl Spaatz says of our air force: "It must be geared to work in harmony with the nation's ground and naval services in supporting American foreign policy and in maintaining the peace.

"For this task in national security the AAF needs the full support of the American people."

Mansfield has given and continues to give that support.

ADJOURNMENT DRIVE SNAGS THREE BILLS

Measures Designed to Help U. S. in World Politics Might Be Dropped.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Three administration bills designed to strengthen this country's head in world politics and to bolster American defenses are snagged in the adjournment drive now on in congress.

Foreign policy authorities believe only one has even the slightest chance of approval before the lawmakers close up shop for the year on Friday. The others are regarded as already dead.

The three measures, none of which has passed either house, would:

1. Authorize the president to send military missions any where in the world. This is the legislation which some state department officials believe still has a chance even though action was blocked in the senate earlier this week.

2. Permit the president to promote standardization of arms and equipment throughout the western hemisphere. The aim of this legislation is to produce uniformity of military equipment from the Arctic circle to the Antarctic tip of South America in the interest of tighter hemisphere defense.

3. Allow the president to help train and equip a Chinese army of one million men, provided Gen. George C. Marshall succeeds in his efforts to unify China. Diplomatic authorities have been wondering the past few days what effect administration failure to get this China aid bill through congress might have on Chinese opinion in the light of Marshall's thus far futile efforts.

Administration efforts have been concentrated on the military missions bill partly because it is the nearest to floor action—committees in both chambers have okayed it—and partly because some of its provisions would cover some of the same ground as the China bill. In other words, the president still could send a training mission to China.

Beyond this is the fact that United States policy framers for the Middle East — the area of Arab tensions and Russian expansionism—have been very eager to send U. S. military delegations to that part of the world.

In some respects President Truman might be able, if he chose to use his wartime emergency powers, to accomplish some of the purpose of the dying legislation.

For instance, some of his advisors contend that (A) he has authority to dispose of surplus war materials to the Chinese to help them create a new army and (B) that on an emergency basis he presumably could maintain a military mission there for a long time.

Others, however, take the position that this is an unreliable basis on which to build major U. S. policy.

The arms standardization bill would have permitted a type of renewed lend-lease operation for South American countries in order to interest them in United States arms. This program, however, has never appealed to the British who do not want to lose their arms market in South America.

Driver of the car, Albert E. Amick, 21, of Lexington, R. D. 2, told officers that his car was turning into Springmill street when he heard and felt the impact of the 'cycle striking the car. The boy was admitted to General hospital.

Frank Sparrow, 73, died at his home on the Park avenue west road at 3:30 a. m., today following a short illness.

Born in Anderson, Ind., May 30, 1873, he had been a resident of this community for many years. He was a retired miller.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nettie M. Sparrow.

Named to State Training Posts

Robert E. Rogers, 262 Parkway drive, and Don H. Mateer of Mt. Gilead were among the six training officers and review clerks who were appointed today by the state department of education to supervise the 17,000 Ohio establishments aproved for veterans' on-the-job training.

Dr. Clyde Hissong, state education director, said the department will supervise only actual training programs and abilities of establishments to give competent instruction. Mateer is a review clerk, while Rogers is a training officer. Rogers, former News-Journal staff member, served in the navy during the war.

Waits 7 Years For His Dream To Come True

ered around him after the final run. Gene, who carefully primed the racing wheels with oil before the races, looked over at his younger brother, grinned, and said, "Come on, smile—show those teeth!"

Whisked away from the crowd, Marlin was perched on top of the army recruiting office's jeep to ride through the downtown district holding his trophy as city champion of "the greatest amateur racing event in the world." The jeep was driven by Lt. Thomas Blackburn. Marlin's mother, Mrs. Robert Powell, Lincoln Heights, rode in the jeep behind her son.

"I'll try to win at Akron" Marlin said still a little breathless with excitement.

Mrs. Powell reported: "Marlin outgrew the racer so they had to enlarge it."

Before the race began, Marlin explained how he worked some 500 hours this summer getting the little streamlined racer in condition for its test. After completing the pine wood body, built on a maple wood plank, Marlin had given the little car eight coats of paint, five of black and three of aluminum.

The isinglass windshield which extended almost to the nose of the racer was installed, and then Marlin started taking his "exercises" for the race.

"Every day he practiced bending over without flexing his knees," his step-father said proudly. "You see, he has to sit with his legs straight out in the racer and bend over to guide it. The other day he stood on a nine-inch block and touched his fingers to the floor without bending his knees—we thought that was good enough."

All the honors of the derby race, however, didn't go to Marlin. Judson Butler, 398 Newman street captured runner-up place in the finals after placing first in Class B. Twenty-five other racers won prizes, and every boy who entered the contest keeps the racing helmets, donated by General Motors, and the derby-emblemed racing shirt given by the News-Journal.

seemed to make the coasters move a little faster.

When the boys rode back up to the top of the hill with their cars on the "return truck" wave after wave of ovations washed after them.

Only two mishaps occurred and neither was serious.

Jimmy Castleberry, a class B driver, lost control of his racer and it slid into the east fence. A few heats later Lawrence Yeater, class A, couldn't keep his little car in a straight path and swerved into the east fence.

Plucky little Ben Gray, class B, had to apply his brakes before he got to the finish line. He then joined the crowd at the bottom of the hill to watch the remainder of the races.

Top speed reached by the racers was 28 miles per hour.

George Donges, Ashland college athletic director, had several close decisions to make as the cars crossed the finish line . . . He had to hold the checkered flag until the last possible moment before bringing it down.

Most of the officials found it mighty difficult to perform their tasks because of their interest in the races. The crowd was unanimous in praise of the officials' fairness.

Sportsmanship stood out throughout the afternoon's racing. The young drivers performed like veterans as they guided their brightly colored cars down the smooth hill.

Popcorn, peanuts, ice cream bars and cokes were sold by young boys. The warm afternoon made business good.

day for conferences with the congressman.

Continuing his interviews at the Mansfield-Leland hotel until 11 p. m. last night, McGregor held 53 conferences during the day.

The congressman listened to complaints from several Merchant Marines of World War II and their parents who wanted congress to provide the same privileges for them as have been accorded ex-soldiers, navy men and marines, under the veterans' act.

They also wanted freedom from being drafted into military service after they had served in the Merchant Marine during the war, McGregor said.

Another complaint had to do with recent government regulation which prohibits the use of hardwood in housing construction such as framing, siding and sub-flooring.

Enforcement of such a regulation would threaten many veterans' housing projects, either proposed or under construction, since there isn't enough softwood to meet the demand, the congressman said.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 1, 1946

It has not yet been determined at exactly what point a campaign contribution becomes a bribe.

It is reported that a new sunspot, 75 times the size of the earth, is shaped much like the footprint of a bear—probably evidencing the Russian influence.

Careful study results in various experts deciding that President Truman either won or lost ground by signing the OPA bill—so you can take your choice.

Smell Detected In Canol Project

THERE ARE those who say that the late Canol project to pipe oil from the Norman oil field in Canada to Alaska "smells"—and not of oil, either.

After Pearl Harbor we were a pretty desperate nation and ready to take fairly desperate measures for defense. Alaska was plainly a bulwark against possible Japanese invasion.

Somebody conceived the idea of piping Canadian oil to Alaska and Gen. Brehon B. Somervell took the project under his epaulets.

Now it comes to light in testimony taken before what was then the Truman senate investigating committee and recently given wide publicity that Somervell's adviser, James H. Graham, estimated that the pipeline would be about 500 miles long but didn't know how long it turned out to be!

This same adviser told the Truman committee no estimate was made on how much the project would require in terms of materials or manpower. Aim was to get 20,000 barrels of oil a day to Alaska, but the pipeline would carry only 3,000 barrels daily.

The adviser, when questioned on this point, said there would have to be another line—but he didn't know how big it should be. It seems that there wasn't even any discussion about getting a refinery to Alaska.

According to Harold L. Ickes, former secretary of interior, the abandoned project cost the taxpayers in excess of $135,000,000.

Naturally a government can't be expected to pinch pennies when lives are at stake, but the recent munitions scandals coupled with the Canol folly and testimony of the comptroller general of the United States indicate literally billions of American dollars were thrown away in bribes, swindles, double expense accounts and planless projects.

When the taxpayers start paying the bill, THAT will be a real brake on inflation. The old pipe dream of getting something from the government for nothing will be reversed. They'll be paying plenty for things they never got and never can get—except the smell.

Derby Reveals Fine Boyhood Traits

SUCCESS of the Soap Box Derby yesterday afternoon was evidenced not only by the crowd of more than 5,000 adults and children who lined the course on South Main street, but by the attitude of the young "drivers" as well.

First of all, these youngsters showed full co-operation with officials. They were tense with youthful seriousness and excitement but there was not a "smart aleck" in the bunch and that speaks well for the homes from which they come.

Second, watching the racers dart across the finish line was a study in boy psychology. The winners held down their elation. They looked actually grim! Faces of the losers sagged. After all, in the scores of hours they had spent building those racers—many of them really exceptional mechanical cars—they had not thought about defeat. They had kept their eyes on victory.

That, incidentally, is how boys become men and men become great—by keeping their eyes on success and learning from defeat but never being beaten by it. And the Soap Box Derby is a splendid way for boys to learn this primary lesson of life.

Congratulations are in order not only to the racers, but to the police officials and others whose highly efficient assistance made success of the derby possible.

Aftermath of Juvenile Delinquency

WHILE 22-year-old Ralph Hoffer will be required to face a first degree murder charge in Newark, in connection with the killing of Mrs. Thelma Anderson, 17, it appears that the accused youth, who is a dishonorably discharged war veteran, is somewhat confused about the whole affair.

He admits having beaten the girl during a fight, but contends she was alive when he left her.

"I get awful mad when I am drinking, and lose my reason," he explained. Hoffer's military service record was so bad as to result in dishonorable discharge. His civilian record includes seven arrests before entering the army, one for automobile theft at the age of 17.

There you have a case of the follow-up of juvenile delinquency that seems to merit further study of contributing causes.

Gertrude Stein's Unique Career

GERTRUDE STEIN, who died in Paris a few days ago, was one of the most criticized and most ridiculed of recent American writers. She had a staunch following for her literary experiments, but those readers who understood what she was trying to do and enjoyed her writings were very few. In her way, she was a pioneer and an inventor in the field of literature, but the results were too far removed from current thought and usual writing techniques to exert any considerable influence.

Gertrude Stein as a person was a warm, cordial woman who welcomed American soldiers to her home in the foothills of the French Alps, where she moved from Paris when the war prevented her from returning to the United States. The troops who visited her there will remember her friendliness and her enthusiasm for America, whether or not they ever open one of her strange books.

Alf Landon, Republican nominee for president in 1936, says: "I don't see how the Republicans can be dumb enough to lose the next presidential election"—apparently having underestimated the dumbness potentialities of the GOP Old Guard.

Scientific tests have shown that the inside of a cucumber is actually 20 degrees cooler than the surrounding temperature—thus proving that to be "as cool as a cucumber" is really something.

American antique buyers have found antique furniture extremely scarce in Europe on their first post-war buying trips. It's possible that the antiques are needed there as furniture.

Conferees Concede 'Free Press'

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

HATS OFF to the rules committee of the Paris Peace conference for its action in voting to allow the press free access to proceedings of this meeting which is so important to the rehabilitation of Europe and consequently to world stability.

It was Secretary of State Byrnes who made the motion for freedom of the press and—strange to report—he was immediately supported by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov.

It hasn't been often that the American and Soviet statesmen have found immediate agreement on any subject, and so this was a notable occasion. It was particularly noteworthy because Russia's ideas about freedom of the press are quite different from those of the western democracies.

Moscow doesn't believe in allowing publication of anything which the government disapproves.

An American source quoted Molotov as saying that some Soviet proposals had been reported inaccurately recently. The foreign minister thought this could be remedied if reporters were allowed to attend committee meetings. Thus with the sponsorship of the world's two most powerful nations, the press finally got a break.

And the significance of this?

Well, freedom of the press is the most accurate barometer there is by which to gauge the freedom of the peoples concerned. If there is no freedom of the press there is repression of other rights.

It's to be hoped that the present peace conference—and subsequent conferences—will throw open their doors to reporters. I've reported so many foreign conferences of one kind or another that I should have to refer to my files to recall the number. Almost invariably we've had to go down into the mines and dig for every grain of gold we got. And we had to move a lot of dirt to get at the ore.

The Versailles Peace conference of a generation ago was a fair example. The American and British delegations declared for open sessions, but the French, Italians and Japanese favored secrecy —and they meant secrecy!

President Wilson and Prime Minister David Lloyd George made a fight for us, and some concessions were granted, but for the most part it was the same old story.

Conference communiques were issued daily to give us what was good for us to know. The various delegations also had press headquarters and at least the American and British special press arrangements were very helpful. For the most part, however, we members of the foreign legion of reporters depended on the private sources which we had built up over the years. The reporter who had a good friend on one of the delegations was indeed lucky.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, August 1, 1926

Two men were injured and at least 15 cars damaged in ten traffic accidents in Mansfield and vicinity.

It was announced that plans had been completed for new St. Peter's parochial school to be erected at northeast corner of West First and South Mulberry streets.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Oswalt, 296 South Main street.

Mrs. Clara R. Rehl, 53, died at her home, 42 Hammond avenue.

George W. Biddle and family returned from Canadian motor trip.

John F. Kramer was chosen president of Mansfield Independent Chautauqua association, to succeed Howard M. Ruhl.

E. Stokes Hiestand underwent appendicitis operation at General hospital.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

Roy Gardner was seriously injured in a fall from a bicycle. (It was a bicycle then, remember?)

TODAY IN HISTORY

The United States Army Air Force was created on Aug. 1, 1907, when an aeronautical division was established in the army "to study the flying machine and the possibility of adapting it to military purposes."

Dave Boone Says:

AT LAST a peace conference is under way in Paris, but it's so long since the war that it's a good deal like hearing the elephants are in town six months after the circus has left.

But what happens in Paris is linked up with the future of just about every man, woman and child in this groggy world. Why the next few weeks aren't declared weeks of special prayers in every church in the land and in every home is hard to understand.

There has seldom been so much need for so much praying.

* * *

It seems like it takes a modern peace meeting to bring out the real warlike nature of man and his ingrowing fear that he may get along with somebody. And that ain't as it should be.

What Professional Soldiers Think.

WASHINGTON — Indignation over the Garsson-May munitions business boils up like hot tar out of a blistering pavement. It is an easy summer-time emotion, calculated to take the mind off current problems.

But it's important, it seems to me, to consider a point of view that has been given little or no expression since the start of the weird pageant of greed put on before the Mead committee. It is the point of view of the professional soldier—not the Pentagon colonels but the men who directed the fighting in the mud and muck of actual combat.

These are the men who will have to fight the next war which some people in this country seem so anxious to promote—including some of those who are exploiting the Garsson mess with the loudest shrieks of righteous indignation. Here, in brief, is what these professional soldiers say.

They point out that, while the Garsson profits sound large today, they are actually minute in comparison to the vast sums spent in the war.

They discount the rumors of future scandals to come, since congressional investigators have combed the files and have come up with nothing larger than the Garsson affair.

The professional soldier, who used the 4.2 mortar shell, is deeply disturbed by the stress put on defective shells in relation to the profits of the Garsson combine. He knows that one of the grim facts about wholesale war is that a certain percentage of defects turn up which do their share of the killing.

These men are disturbed because they know such exploitation will serve to disarm us at a time when our strength and stability might check the kind of aggression that can lead to another war. It will disarm us militarily, morally and spiritually. It delights those who, like the Communists, want to see this nation disarmed.

We as Americans ought to do a little soul-searching over our attitude toward these same professional soldiers. We should try to keep a little of the background in view in spite of summer-time emotions.

We have always treated our professional military like stepchildren or like museum pieces. We starve them and ignore them. Then, in times of crisis, we turn to them with a desperate demand to save us.

Little enough has been said of the major fault disclosed by the Mead committee hearings. That is the weakness of the committee system in congress, a system which the LaFollette-Monroney bill has done little to change.

By virtue of seniority, Rep. Andrew J. May became chairman of the house military affairs committee, a position of great power in the midst of a war. He was unfitted in every way for that post.

In 1934 and '35, we had a munitions investigation that might have been used to rationalize our system of military supply. Instead, it was exploited in such a way that the net effect was to disarm this country in the face of the Nazi plan for world domination. Let's not forget that today.

Injuries From Wearing Rings.

YOU'D never expect that such severe injuries as sprains, dislocated joints, broken bones or even loss of a finger could result from the wearings of rings. And, yet, Drs. Harold E. Simon and Harry Alban of the U. S. Army Medical Corps, have found they do and rather frequently at that.

They made a survey of a group of one thousand soldiers and found that more than two out of three wore rings. About one out of every 30 had suffered some injury attributed to the presence of the ring. These physicians also noted 11 ring injuries which were so severe that surgical attention was required.

Finger Injuries.

It is reasonable to assume that there are many minor finger injuries due to rings which do not come to the physician's attention.

The ring may cause injury in various ways. Most frequently the injury occurs because the ring is caught on a projection. In almost one-third of the cases studied the injury occurred during the course of sent for an airplane.

In these instances as the person was leaving the plane, the ring caught on some projection and thus put the pessure on the finger. Six injuries occurred from catching the ring on a nail or a bolt. The remainder occurred in various ways, such as pushing a swing crushing the ring against the finger during an overenthusiastic hand shake or as a result of other crushing injuries.

Some people wear rings after they have become too small. This, of course, interferes with the circulation and may result in some type of trouble after a prolonged period.

The injuries which result from the rings include contusions or bruising but more often laceration or tearing of the skin. These lacerations frequently require sewing.

Because of the number of injuries which may result from wearing rings, Drs. Simon and Alban advise that rings be removed during work and at any other time when wearing them might be dangerous.

Uniform Courtesy Of Truck Drivers.

DENVER, Colo.—"I guess they just have to be born that way," said big, raw-boned Ray Thompson as the filling station attendand nosed gasoline into his truck. Maybe so. But whatever the reason, after five months and more than 10,000 miles on the road, this is a tribute to the truck-drivers —the real knights of the highway.

Generalizing is dangerous business at best, and probably the truck-driving clan has as high a percentage of stinkers as any other. But after a while, you come to regard them as almost impossibly perfect citizens.

This is why:

Unfortunately, after a few weeks on the open road, you come to the conclusion that the average motorist is an extremely selfish individual. The matter of dimming lights at night is one of the best examples.

If your lights are exceedingly bright, the approaching driver will dim his almost automatically —in order to get you to dim yours. But if your brights are not too blinding or glaring, he may well not even notice you. He is just as likely to meet and pass you without bothering to dim at all.

Not so the truck driver. Regardless of whether your lights are bright or dim, he will politely and courteously dim his before they had a chance to blind you. He knows too well the aggravation and eyestrain involved in meeting a long parade of nondimmers.

Then there's the business of passing both by day and by night. If it's daylight in the Rockies, and you're winding around a long, interminably twisty highway, you can stay behind another vehicle for endless hours, unless he cooperates. He can see the road ahead of him. You can't.

The average motorist will let you stew in your own juice, even though he obviously is going from 10 to 30 miles slower than you. The average truck driver, on the other hand, will watch for a semiclear stretch of the road, and then wave you around, letting you know by arm signals that it's clear ahead.

Their courteous and alert awareness of the people behind them is like a breath of fresh air.

Suppose you've broken down during the daylight hours. Well . . . on a highway high in the mountains, we saw a stalled car on a particularly deadly stretch of road.

The owner was frantically trying to get it into motion. Other cars were cutting dangerously around it with one-way traffic along the steep precipice.

But 200 yards down the road, a truck driver stopped. Carefully, he braced a red flag with stones from the mountainside to warn oncoming drivers that there was danger ahead. Then he walked some four or five hundred yards until he was an equal distance behind the broken down vehicle and mounted another red flag by the roadside.

Then, having found there was nothing more he could do to help the stalled tourist, he wheeled on his way.

Suppose you're stalled at night. In Louisiana, we got stuck on a muddy shoulder, trying to turn around one night. Not a single passing car would pause to help us out. But a truck driver, already overdue in New Orleans, stopped and with a cable managed to snake us back on the highway.

In the desert stretches of Utah, we broke down at night. It was the same story. Perhaps half a hundred cars whizzed by. Finally a trucker came along, stopped, brought out his kit and helped get the motor in running order again.

It's always that way. For real courtesy, kindness, and feeling for his fellow man, the truck driver is the one guy on the road you can always depend on.

DEAR BOSS:

Your sick cow is getting sicker. . . . Your pal, Congressman May, is still in hot water. . . . Your black cat is still spending most of the day in the letter box on your desk—she doesn't seem to miss you at all, though of course we do.

I have made a survey of how the solons voted on OPA. It shows two amazing miracles: Byrd of Virginia and McKellar of Tennessee voted right down the line for price control and the people. They bucked the lobbies. (Both are up for election this year.) The fight on McKellar is getting hotter. He may be licked. . . . Didn't suppose anything could overturn the Byrd machine in Virginia but he seems worried—at least worried enough to vote with the folks.

How Others Voted on OPA.

Here is how other senators, up for election this year, voted on OPA: of the Democrats, 14 up for election went right down the line for effective price control. Only Democrats who welched were O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Walsh of Mass., Murdock of Utah and Carville of Nevada—and they welched only a couple of time. . . . Of course, this doesn't take in the "Repocrats" like George and Russell of Georgia, Eastland of Mississippi and others not up for reelection who ran out on Truman most of the time. . . . Here is the Republican score card: Langer and Young of North Dakota voted consistently against price control. They come from solid GOP farming areas. Austin of Vermont, another solid GOP state, also against price control, (he's leaving the senate in January for the United Nations.) . . . One Republican, LaFollette of Wisconsin, voted consistently for price control, except on one amendment—dairy products. Three other Republicans split their vote—Knowland of California, Smith of New Jersey, Stanfill of Kentucky. Most of the time they leaned against price control. . . . Wonder what the reaction will be next November?

Did some more checking on Rep. Frank Keefe of Oshkosh, Wis., whom you listed as a "pocketbook" congressman. He's the guy who voted against national cemeteries to bury the war dead, and in favor of using private cemeteries. The Lakeview Memorial Park cemetery, of which the congressman is president, reported a total income of $22,533 last year. This was against $17,396 the year before. Thanks to Keefe's pocketbook voting, maybe the cemetery business will pick up. . . . The Oklahoma newspapers are riding another of your "pocketbook" congressmen, Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, in connection with his getting Ben Fields, of the Erie Basin war profiteers, out of the penitentiary. . . . Poor Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah! People are always getting him mixed up with Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma. In contrast, Utah's Elbert is a saint.

Slow at State Department.

Things are a little slow at the state department with both you and Byrnes away. However, I picked up the following items. . . . The U. S. A. has decided to support Transjordania's bid for admission into the United Nations. This is to appease the Arabs. . . . Truman has invited the Belgian prince regent to come to Washington in October as a government guest. . . . Even tiny Honduras joined in the inter-American protests against the harsh peace terms imposed on Italy. . . . The state department has protested to Bulgaria against the Bulgarian secret police who have threatened American diplomats in the Balkans.

The office force wants me to remind you that we expect some real souvenirs of Paris. Come back soon.

Boss Crump "Cracks the Whip" In Memphis.

MEMPHIS — Tennessee is tugging again at the bonds imposed for so long by Boss Ed H. Crump who sits in this city on the western edge of the state and cracks his whip over it with sadistic pleasure of an ante-bellum overseer.

The ways in which he exercises his control are plainly revealed once again by what his henchmen are doing for the test of power in today's primary. Boss Crump is backing the veteran Senator Kenneth D. McKellar for another term—he is serving his fifth—and Gov. Jim McCord for re-election.

Mr. Crump rules the state and makes the people pay for it. He exacted tribute from them, for example, to raise a campaign fund of $300,000 to $350,000 to beat off his foes at this election.

His opponents are supporting Edward W. (Ned) Carmack, 48-year-old lawyer and editor of Murfreesboro, son of a former U. S. senator, for the senate, and Gordon Browning for governor. Mr. Browning is an excongressman, ex-governor and a Crump enemy who is in the American military government in Germany and running by remote control.

Deductions of 10 per cent were made for two months from the pay of state employes for the campaign fund. Also levied upon for contributions were liquor dealers who must have licenses to do business; insurance agents who write security bonds for Memphis and the state, and automobile dealers who compete for business with the city and state.

These people pay—or else. They risk the loss of their state jobs or loss of business with the state.

Levying upon state employes who work for agencies that are partially supported by federal funds, which some are, is a violation of the Hatch act. That is, if primaries are considered part of elections, and the Supreme Court has so ruled. There may be ground for federal action in what is going on. Numerous cases have been brought under the Hatch act.

How the trick works with private business is shown by the story of a retail liquor dealer. He was asked for a $200 contribution. He said he couldn't afford it.

"Then I was reminded that if I wanted to stay in business I had to have a license. I was making money. So I paid."

There are other devices, familiar to other political machines, by which Boss Crump keeps his minions in line. If a businessman, for instance, should get obstreperous and politically active against Boss Crump, he suddenly would be visited by a building inspector. Lawyers and preachers have felt the pressure in one way or another. Some men have been driven from the city and had to do business elsewhere.

This Memphis story has been told often. It is repeated now because once again the people are trying to break the Crump despotism, and it is appropriate to recall it because of the war we have been through.

The Crump dictatorship is comparable to those which American boys fought to uproot abroad.

By it all Boss Crump has done nicely for himself in his own insurance and mortgage business.

As his power has grown, his sadistic impulses have gained full and free play. He loves to order around "my senator" and "my governor" and "my mayor."

Farmer's Diary: "Plant 'Killers'."

PLANTS have many traits that are almost human. Some plants are admirable, some slovenly; some weak, some strong; some helpers to everything about them . . . some robbers and killers.

I have always looked upon our native oaks, elms, maples, hickories, and our orchard trees with a sense of inspiration. Each possesses independence, and bears fruit of a sort that rightfully reproduces its kind. They are giants of the earth, towering over other forms of vegetation, vital for centuries.

In our woods, too, we have wild grape vines that climb to the very top of our finest forest trees. They produce a bower of greenery beautiful to look upon but destructive to the host it clings to. It seals the sunlight away from the hardy tree leaves and makes them pale and sickly.

Often, beneath such a canopy to escape a summer shower, I have looked up into the very center of the standing tree, to find the top dead and only the skeleton of branches holding up a vigorous vine. A year or two and the trunk will crash, and both guest and host go down together.

Common dodder, or strangle weed, is a parasite of fields and fencerows. It has a dull yellow stem, but is devoid of leaves. As a small plant, it roots in the soil but as its leafless tendrils reach out and cling to whatever plant is nearest, it winds clockwise about its victim and on the coiled stem are suckers that penetrate the bark, clinging like leeches, so that I often broke the dodder stem before I could pull them loose. These open mouths of the dodder suck the sap from their host—then the roots disappear and they draw their whole sustenance by robbery. Clusters of pale yellow flowers are legion, producing four seeds each. These fall and reproduce. Often in a clover field, dull yellow streaks show where the battle goes on between the clover and the dodder parasite.

In our neighbor's woods, adjoining our farm, a fine tall red oak has small bracket fungi growing from the northern side, halfway from roots to upper branches. That tree is doomed. To date science has found no cure—for infected parts may be cut away, yet in a short while the fungi will grow out more vigorously than ever, and the vital life fluid of the tree will feed only the "killer."

Conference Viewed as "Dull Interlude."

Walter Lippmann is on vacation for several weeks. His column will be resumed upon his return.

PARIS—In the spring of 1941, it was natural for a man abandoning the newspaper business to resolve to attend the peace conference which would, as one said then, mark "The End of All This." As a sort of sentimental journey, your correspondent is fulfilling that resolve. It is necessary to add, however, that no sensible man in the pompous precincts of the Luxembourg Palace supposes for a moment that this meeting marks either the end or the beginning of anything at all.

At best it will be a rather dull interlude in the new great power diplomacy. At worst it will be a squalid public exhibition of the deterioration of international relations in our time.

The Byrnes-Attlee discussions of the Palestine problem are of far more functional importance.

Nevertheless, this meeting has its meaning, if it is viewed in the correct perspective. It is not surprising to anyone accustomed to the public speech of politicians and/or statesmen that the setting supplies a far better perspective than anything being said on the floor of the old French senate chamber.

In this bright August, the park around the Luxembourg Palace, the last ecstacy of the old fashioned French gardening, is in brilliant perfection. The trees display their green in ordered ranks. The beds of flowers approximate the ideal of every French gardener, which is to make nature look like a Turkish carpet. And in the gravelled walks the children still roll hoops, while their parents (nurses are expensive and therefore rare) talk of the two great themes of modern Europe, the black market and the likelihood of war.

As for the palace itself, it was built for Marie de Medicis at the moment when the fruit of western culture was beginning to reach its final ripeness on the sunny wall of France. And in the gross ornamentation of the much later senate chamber, built into the ancient fabric, one can perceive what overripeness does.

It is very suitable that all the little men in dark suits, waiting in boredom to speak themselves or to listen to their chiefs, should be enshrined amid the coarse gilding, heavy crimson plush and vulgar plaster fantasy that first bespoke decline.

Without, in the balmy afternoon, there are those who want peace. There is even a suggestion of what peace can be. Within, in the stuffy atmosphere of the palace, there are the little men in their official chairs. They are the delegates to a peace conference which they have little hope will bring peace.

If this meeting achieves anything, what will the achievement be? It will be a registration of the previous decisions of the council of foreign ministers. And what will that registration accomplish? A little, the wise men answer. The Trieste settlement may establish the semblance of a governmental structure in that troubled area.

Italy may at least be told where she stands and on what slender foundations she must attempt to build her future wellbeing. Balkan treaties may at least be signed. And the exhausted foreign ministers may at least be able to assure themselves that one group of questions has been stricken from the crowded agenda. That is something, even though it is not peace.

How little it is can best be judged by comparing the realities in the Balkans with the fine words of the treaty texts. The Soviet Union has engaged to evacuate the Soviet forces from Bulgaria within ninety days of the ratification of the treaty. But that will hardly be until next spring.

Meanwhile, the little men in the plush chairs whisper to one another that the Soviets have already organized a wholly dependable Bulgarian secret police, and are about to expel the non-Communist minister of war and purify the army. With the opposition liquidated, the secret police in their hands and the army under Communist control, it will not matter much whether Soviet forces are in Bulgaria or out of it.

The same process is going on more slowly in Romania and Hungary, but there the Soviet armies will remain until the distant date when an Austrian treaty has been signed. At this writing, the little men in the plush chairs are inclined to write off Romania, never notable for political independence, while they have hopes for Hungary. But as the destruction of the Hungarian economy continues, and as concession after concession is offered to Rakosy, the Communist leader, they also ask where it all will end in Hungary.

Or one supposes that through the eyes of the Soviet delegation, who seem somehow harder and more solid than the other occupants of the plush chairs, Romania appears to be almost dependable while anti-Soviet wreckers are still permitted to survive in the streets of Budapest.

It is those realities which tell the truth about this conference. It is not such a meeting, even, as the unhappy conference at Versailles.

It is a mere episode in the contest between two vast systems, one controlled by the Soviet Union, the other intermittently led by the United States.

Every move by the chiefs on both sides has behind it the thought that ultimately the contest may lead not to peace but to war. It is still not too late to find some accommodation. But it hardly seems likely that an accommodation will be found if the occupants of the plush chairs do not begin to discuss their problem in realistic terms.

Without leaders who will speak out as Litvinov did in the old days at Geneva, and without nations determined to support their words with deeds, the future may be hard for the children rolling their hoops under the sunlit trees.

Soon Time to Divide Peonies

By DEAN HALLIDAY

FROM THE middle of August until November, peony plants can be divided. They should not be replanted in the same bed, however, but in entirely new soil.

After digging up the old peony plants, clean off the soil with a stream of water from a hose so you can easily see where to make the dividing cuts. Use a sharp knife, first removing any dead roots and shortening those that are overly long. The tops of the clumps can also be cut back at this time.

Each section of a divided peony clump should have a piece of root attached to a portion of the crown and two or more buds or "eyes," as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. When replanting the divided portion of the plant, the top of the crown should only be two inches below the soil surface, as illustrated.

Peonies will grow in almost any soil, but prefer a rich clay loam which is friable, well-drained, but also well-watered. They do not like a too acid soil.

Fertilizers must not come in contact with the roots for fear of burning them, so in the upper 8 or 10 inches of soil where the roots will set, use rich loam mixed with humus and bone meal.

To keep peony plants growing luxuriantly year after year, they should have light applications of wood ashes worked into the soil each year plus feedings of plant-food. If wood ashes are not available use sulphate of potash or muriate of potash, one handful to each plant.

Peonies prefer full sun but grow well in light shade where the flower color is intensified and the blooms last longer. They should not be planted too close to trees or shrubs where the stronger roots will rob the peony plants of necessary food and moisture.

Coyote Population in West Growing Steadily.

SALEM, Ore.—(U.P.)—Predatory animals, especially coyotes, are on the increase in the Western states, according to statistics compiled by the Oregon Department of Agriculture.

Consequently, federal, state, county and private agencies are increasing efforts to rid the range of these stock killers. Coyotes, bobcats, foxes, mountain lions, wolves and occasionally bears are the worst offenders, with the tawny, crafty coyote holding the limelight.

Try and Stop Me

Why is every absent-minded-professor story pinned to the brilliant but long-suffering Irwin Edman, the triple threat of the Columbia philosophy department?

It definitely was not Irwin who was toying with a dissertation on Spinoza, and when his sister phoned to say "you must do something about The Tribune; it printed a story of your death this morning," answered, "Dear, dear! I suppose we must send flowers."

At the very last practice blackout in New York, former Mayor LaGuardia was informed that the only thing that prevented a one-hundred-percent result was one little lightning-bug who blithely ignored instructions. The Mayor had the offender hauled before him and said, "Why didn't you observe blackout regulations?" "It's this way, Your Honor," said the lightning-bug. "When ya gotta glow, ya gotta glow."

LAND HIGH

Farms Out of Reach For Vets, Despite GI Loans.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Farm land prices have gone so high as to be virtually out of reach of a "G. I. Loan" in the opinion of Otto P. Neutzel, farm security administration supervisor for Franklin and Delaware counties.

Neutzel declares the loans will "not make the down payment on a fair-sized unit of productive soil." Nor will they even pay for machinery to operate a farm, he says.

"Most veterans who want to become farmers are willing to wait until conditions become more nearly normal," the supervisor reports. "In fact, only ten loans for farm purchase have been authorized in Ohio so far this year."

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

THE BOLD ONES

Seeming boldness, you may find,
Exists wholly in your mind.
—Sally Sly.

Peter Rabbit couldn't keep away from the Old Pasture. Sweetvoice, the Vesper Sparrow, still sang from his favorite fence post and Peter knew that he was singing to Mrs. Sweetvoice; that somewhere near she was sitting on eggs in her nest. Because he had looked and looked without finding that nest he tried to believe that there wasn't one, but he knew he was only trying to fool himself, and couldn't. In spite of himself curiosity sent him back to the Old Pasture again and again. Curiosity is like that.

Time after time he had a feeling that he was very near that nest. He was. He had a favorite place in which to rest when tired of wandering about. It was beneath a clump of big ferns. Under those same ferns, in a Cow's footprint made before the closed fists of those ferns had broken through the ground, was that nest with Mrs. Sweetvoice sitting on four precious eggs. Do you wonder that Peter had that feeling? But in all his search for that nest he never once thought of looking on the ground.

This morning Peter had followed one of the cowpaths between the bushes to where the bushes stopped. Peter stopped, too. Just beyond were Farmer Brown's Cows. Some were grazing. They moved about slowly, their heads down as they munched the grass, their tails switching off the troublesome flies. Two were lying down chewing their cuds. Many times had Peter watched them do this and always it puzzled him. He was sure that they were not chewing on nothing, as he sometimes did, but were chewing food. Where did they get it? They never reached out for a mouthful of grass. They wouldn't have got any if they had, for just there it had already been eaten too short for any more eating. Yet they chewed and chewed and swallowed and chewed some more. It was very puzzling.

Things we don't know usually are puzzling. Peter, having but one stomach himself, didn't know that some animals have more than one stomach, one of which is a sort of big storage stomach or inside pocket. If Cows had to stop to chew each mouthful of grass, as food should be chewed, they never would be through eating. So they swallow it just as it is into their big storage stomachs. When these are filled they lie down, bring up into their mouths, a little at a time, that unchewed grass, called a cud, and in quiet comfort and enjoyment chew it slowly and thoroughly. Then it is swallowed into their real stomachs. Animals that can do this, Cows, Sheep, Deer and some others, are called ruminants. It means cud chewers.

Walking about with those grazing Cows, at times almost under their very feet, were two feathered folks. They were catching insects disturbed in the grass by those big feet. Had those insects not been disturbed and forced to move, even the bright eyes of those feathered hunters would have missed most of them.

One of these was dressed wholly in grayish brown. It was Sally the Cowbird. Peter knew her at once. The other, his head and neck a rich brown, his suit of glossy black that here and there was purple or green in the bright sunlight, was Mr. Cowbird. Peter knew they were cousins of Redwing the Blackbird. Soon they were joined by several others of their own kind.

Sally Sly snatched an insect from right under an uplifted hoof. Such boldness! Peter wasn't afraid of those Cows. Certainly not. But he wouldn't have dreamed of going as close to one as that. All the birds were running about in the boldest manner among those moving feet, and even closer to the lowered heads of the Cows.

Then Sally Sly did something that caused Peter to blink and wonder if his eyes were quite all right. She hopped up on the back of one of the Cows lying down and began walking about there catching flies.

"I knew she was bold, but I didn't think she was that bold," muttered Peter. In spite of himself he felt a sort of respect for Sally Sly.

She wasn't really bold. It was a perfect understanding, a sort of partnership, between the Cows and these feathered folk. The Cows supplied easily caught food and in return the birds rid their big friends of annoying flies and other pests.

Girl Doesn't Know Her Own Mind

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was going steady with a sailor who had been overseas a year and a half.

I met another boy, named Bob, and I grew so fond of him that I broke off with the sailor to go steady with Bob. The sailor died of malaria, and when I received the news I became very upset and walked out on Bob.

Bob gave me another chance, and I walked out on him again. Still he gave me another chance, and I have not walked out on him yet. He has made about six dates with me and he has stood me up on two of them. Do you think he really likes me?

Marie M.

Well, I don't think it would be very surprising if he felt you were a pretty poor risk to tie up to, do you, Marie? Nor do I think you can blame him for not being punctilious about keeping dates with a girl who thinks nothing of "walking out" on her boy friend whenever she happens to feel in the mood to do so. Why should you expect better treatment from him than he gets from you? I think he's been unusually patient with your monkeyshines.

About all you can do if you want this boy to be interested in you, I think, is to be very scrupulous about keeping every appointment made with him. If that doesn't show him that you've decided to be a more reliable girl friend, or if he still continues to break dates, then I'm afraid you have only yourself to blame for losing his interest, and I'd be more careful with the next boy.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Don't you think a High School graduate has a right to ask her parents to let her go on with her education or work in a big city?

If her parents don't want her to without a good reason, don't you think it's just as right to go ahead with the plans of going?

M. M. L.

It would be rather difficult to give a yes or no answer to your questions without more knowledge as to just what your plans are, or what may be the reasons for your parents' opposition.

All things being equal, it certainly seems fair enough that a girl who has finished High School, and wants to obtain further education, should be allowed to do so. But possibly your parents feel they cannot afford this.

If financial difficulties are in the way, then I would think it also fair enough that such a girl should go to work and earn the money herself for her further education, if she has the initiative to do so.

You evidently believe that your parents do not have a good reason for their refusal to permit either of these things. Are you quite certain their reasons are not good? Before you decide to go ahead on your own and act against their wishes, I would give serious consideration to whatever reasons they have. And if you want to write me again and tell me about these reasons, I'll be glad to think the problem over again.

New York Notes

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Broadway Bulletin Board — Doris Duke's new romance is the estranged husband of a French movie queen. He's a Good Neighbor. . . . The Fred Warings have their friends expecting an announcement. . . . The Errol Flynns (Nora Eddington) are knitting tiny garments again. . . . Brokers report only two Broadway shows are doing standee business at all performances: "Born Yesterday" and "Annie Get Your Gun." . . . Burnu Aquaneta is the bride of wealthy Russian Luciano Baschuck. . . . London correspondents report that Madeleine Carroll will ask for restoration of her British citizenship papers. . . . Ralph Bellamy and Ethel Smith are the latest broadway couple to make an application for a baby at Chicago's Cradle.

Singer Margaret Whiting's newest Dream Cake is Elliot Lawrence, the maestro. . . . Reports persist that Winston Churchill will come to the U. S. in autumn to do a network commentary series. . . . Joey Adams refused to accept pay for filling in for ailing Willie Howard at the Riviera last week. Willie once did him the same favor, for free, when Joey was stricken at a Catskill resort. . . . Norma Howard of the "Carousel" cast hasn't told any one, but the Metropolitan Opera has made her an offer. . . . Pearl Buck's "Pavilion of Women," considered her biggest job since "The Good Earth," will be Literary Guilded in December.

The Soviet government will try very hard to keep the J. P. Morgan Glen Cove estate, even if it means cleaning it up. The lads on this side of the ocean have orders from Moscow to keep a mansion in readiness for "some very important guests due to arrive in New York in the near future." . . . George Raft's newest blonde target (that boy!) is an ingenue, Gerry Dailey, last seen—if you were quick—in "The Girl From Nantucket." She's currently driving his car around filmland. Shortage of chauffeurs, no doubt. . . . One of the airways' more popular musical shows, using top bands, features a must of two songs written by the sponsor's wife on every program. . . . Next expose of the ad agency business will be called "Please Send Me, Absolutely Free." Its author, Arkady Leokum, got his basic training in the agency that educated Fred ("The Hucksters") Wakeman.

Haskell Cohen, the sportswriter, and Chester Washington, noted Negro editor, will collaborate on Joe Louis' "autobiography." . . . Mary McCarthy, the ex-Mrs. Edmund ("Memoirs of Hecate County") Wilson is swooning over the lad with the town's most delicious name: Bowdoin Broadwater. . . . The hinterlands have soured on "jump" music and do everything but hiss bands that play it. Many name bandleaders are forced to carry two libraries — one with swing arrangements for the big cities, one with "sweet" versions for the small towns. . . . Californians are touting "The Jolson Story" as the best musical film in a decade. . . . William Saroyan's new play about Heaven will be called "Apricot Angel." (Did you know Saroyan now wears a sweeping mustache, designed — unsuccessfully—to make him "less conspicuous?") . . . Frank Sinatra has purchased a Hoboken, N. J., manse for his parents.

Zita Miller, model and heiress, is smitten with Billy Bloomingdale, and vice versa. But she's found time to write a first novel, "Flamingo." . . . Shelia Barrett, the impersonator, is out of danger in her bout with pneumonia, but still a very sick lass. . . . A young actress who scored a spectacular Broadway hit last season and a novelist who did the same on the best seller lists are the town's hottest romance. But the writer has a wife, making the situation just the reverse of the one in his book.

Barclay on Bridge

EVERY ALERT declarer knows that a skillful defender is trying to read his mind and figure out what he is trying to do. Taking advantage of that, the declarer can sometimes make his adversary believe he is embarking on a particular plan to make his contract, whereas he actually is on his way to doing something utterly different. But causing the defender to believe a certain procedure is under way, the declarer may thereby lure his prey into taking standard measures to thwart that plan, thereby playing right into disaster.

North got the first two tricks in spades and West ruffed the third. Realizing that he still had to lose a diamond trick, he reckoned that his contract depended on avoiding any loser in trumps. In other words, it was up to him to catch the heart Q. Who had it? North probably, because he had doubled. But on the other hand, North had shown enough general strength to overcall when vulnerable, so perhaps his double was based mainly on his high card strength, in which event South might have the heart Q doubly guarded.

Since West's first play in trumps would cast the die, and disastrously if he guessed wrong, he looked for a way to eliminate the necessity for guessing. He found it, in devising a simple way to make the defense guess for him first, possibly wrongly. It was by creating the appearance that he was planning to ruff out some diamond losers, which might have the effect of causing a defender to lead trumps.

So to the second trick he led the diamond J. North, falling for the scheme, came right in with the A and then, to cut down diamond ruffs, led his singleton heart. That trapped the Q and made the contract secure.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Washington Letter

—By Jane Eads

WASHINGTON — The Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe (CARE) is a non-profit organization through which individuals or groups may order "10-in-1" food packages for delivery to relatives, friends, groups and organizations in certain countries. You can send food without designating a beneficiary, too.

The "10-in-1" is a standard food package, originally designed by the U. S. Army to feed American soldiers. It could be used either as a ration for 10 men for one day or one man for 10 days. Its specifications provide for an average of over 40,000 calories per package. The package weighs approximately 30 pounds net.

Miss Mary Barber, a very efficient person who was director of home economics for the Kellogg Company of Battle Creek, Mich., was called to Washington in January, 1941, as food consultant to the Secretary of War.

She was assigned to the Quartermaster General's office and saw the early progress of rations to guide the diet of young men in selective service. The object was to get a ration that would be nonperishable and which would be met with the greatest acceptance by the troops.

After Pearl Harbor it was necessary to develop rations to meet the different exigencies of the battle front. Finally the "10-in-1" food package was evolved.

Miss Barber says the "10-in-1" is perfectly packaged for shipment overseas. The containers keep out all moisture and gases and prevent any possible spoilage.

To provide variety in diet, government specifications called for five different assortments. Though the package was set up for American food habits, its contents can be prepared in a variety of ways preferred by Europeans.

Miss Barber described the "10-in-1" food package as a "practical and nutritious contribtion to the people in Europe."

Gotten together originally for the GI overseas, with its 4,000 calories a man a day considered necessary to keep the American soldier up to par, the rations for the use of a European family can be stretched much farther.

It has been roughly estimated that 2,000 calories will sustain life. Thus the number of persons the "10-in-1" could feed in one day could be 20, or one person could be fed for 20 days.

Among the foods contained in the package are canned fruit for breakfast and a cereal. The last the Army calls a pre-mix. It is ready to eat, with sugar and powdered milk added. It can be eaten hot or cold, dry or moist. It can also be used successfully as a baby food.

In addition, the package contains more powdered milk, army biscuits, canned meat or some type, canned cheese and canned vegetables. All of these are ready to eat, except the bacon.

For her work during the war Miss Barber received the meritorious award for exceptional civilian service. She was the tenth woman ever to receive this award in the history of the U. S. Army.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, August 2.

FOR those who are able to shake off certain subjective or deep-seated inner urges or confusions, there is splendid promise for the consummation of ambitious or long-range goals of more than passing significance to the life, its fortunes and cherished happiness.

This culmination affects financial, professional, social, intellectual and spiritual values, with romance and adventure, possibly of a spectacular cast. But the ways and means must have firm, sound and well-organized basis and astute strategies, with practical objectives always kept to the fore.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of excellent prospects for decisive advance upon cherished goals and fulfilled aspirations and ambitions, perhaps to a surprising or spectacular degree, in which the private, domestic, business and financial issues are of far-reaching consequence.

However, a certain tendency to the subjective, elusive or intriguing may becloud the issue. Well-planned and executed programs, and clearly marked objectives may attract those interested in subtle, exceptional or unique adventures or romantic contacts. The feet must be planted on the ground though the head be in the clouds. Move cautiously.

A child born on this day may be blessed with much versatility or unique abilities, assuring it a romantic, intriguing and possibly spectacular career, with happiness and thrills.

Quality and value depend on making thoughtful selections of furnishings, not on price-inspired buying.

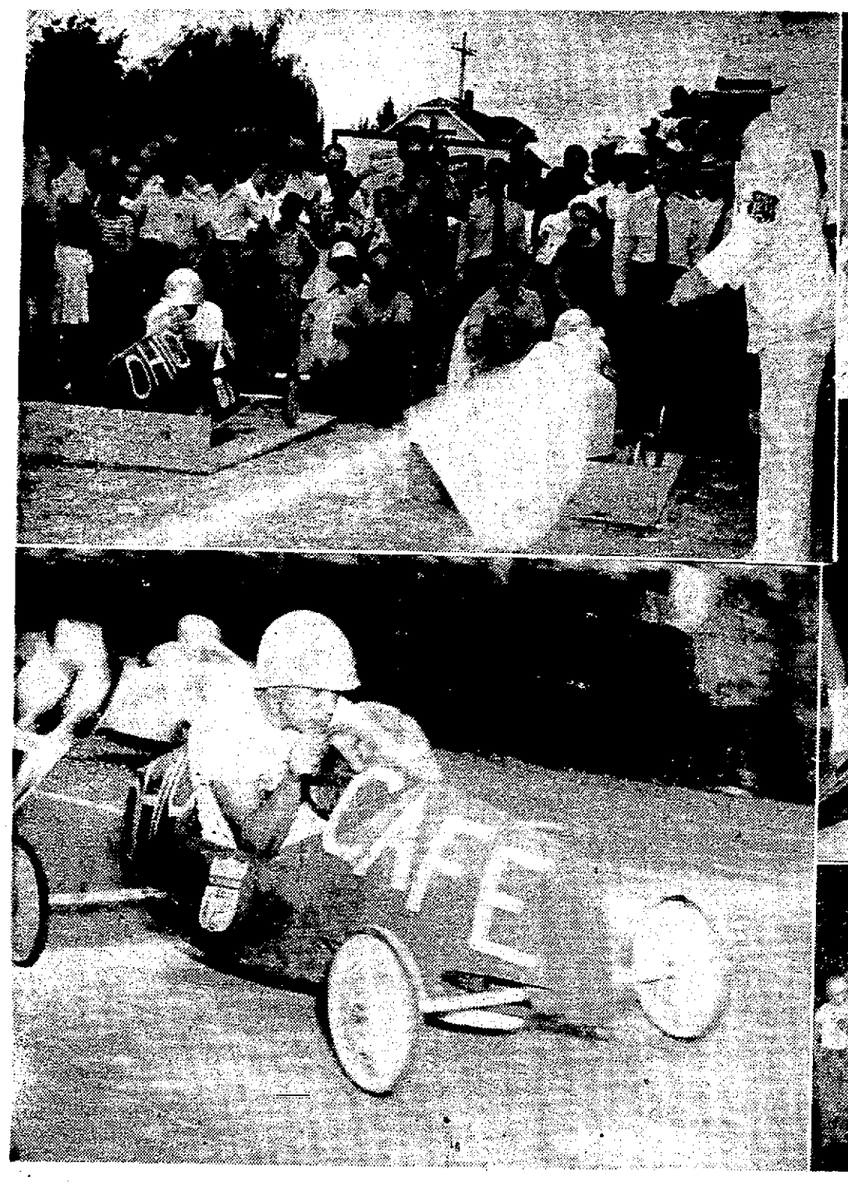
Scenes From Soap Box Classic, Prize Award Ceremony



Here's a pictorial story of the 1946 News-Journal Soap Box Derby. Starter John Catlett waves the white flag (upper left) and they're off. It's the first heat of the Derby with Michael Siciliano going against Donne Jesson. Lower left, Siciliano wins by a length. Upper center, Champion Marlin Kindinger exhibits the winner's trophy. His mother, Mrs. Robert Powell, stands behind him. Upper right, a part of the huge crowd of 6,000 jams the finish line. Youngsters in trees dotting the Derby hill had the choice seats. Derby Director Don Cram and the young drivers (lower center) were snapped on the stage of the Madison theater as prize-awarding ceremonies began. Lower right, Kindinger is loaded down with a portion of his prizes.

MOTOR FIRMS SNUB REUTHER

Industry's Leaders Decline Invitation to Production Conference, Rap Strikes.

DETROIT —(INS)— Henry Ford II led the automotive manufacturers today in what threatens to develop into an industry snub of UAW President Walter P. Reuther's conference, called for tomorrow to discuss production troubles.

Ford suggested to Reuther that the "UAW-CIO do something about the current strikes in 16 plants" supplying the Ford Motor company. The supplier strikes, Ford said, threaten to halt all production in the company's plants in less than a week.

Nash-Kelvinator President George W. Mason also declined to attend Reuther's planned meeting, commenting that the industry survey of strikes that Reuther made apparently "fails to take into account material shortages directly resulting from the numerous and prolonged strikes."

Mason said he is willing to sit down with Reuther privately but certainly would not discuss Nash supply shortages and the reasons for them with his competitors.

Studebaker President Paul G. Hoffman pointed out that Studebaker production was halted yesterday for the third time since July 1, because of suppliers' strikes. Hoffman offered to send a representative with a list of strikes that affected Studebaker production if Reuther insists.

General Motors announced that production rose last week, but so did the number of supplier strikes, jumping from 55 to 60 in two weeks. The GM statement called attention to the UAW-CIO being involved in 20 of the strikes, other CIO affiliates being involved in 35 and five involving AFL unions.

Two companies have notified the UAW president that representatives will attend the conference. One was Kaiser-Frazer and the other was Willys-Overland of Toledo.

Practical Joker Klein Gets Double Dose of Own Medicine

TIRO—Practical Joker Lester Klein got a taste of his own humor yesterday—in celebration of his birthday.

Les, a good natured fellow, often joins in the pranks and jokes of local boys—of all ages. Being proprietor of Kelly's Sandwich shop and a dinner-server at the Bucyrus livestock barn, he's offered many chances to display his "wit."

But yesterday on his birthday the tables were turned.

As he approached the sandwich shop his eye caught a huge sign plastered on the side of his milk wagon. It read: "Happy Birthday." On the other side of the wagon, however, another sign advertised: "Joe's Diaper Service."

On the front of the sandwich shop was an even bigger sign and Les — better known as Joe— grinned as he read: "Horsemeat Will Be Serv'ed Today."

Crowning achievement of Joe's birthday celebrators, however, were signs lettered on the sidewalk approaching the restaurant: "Danger Ahead! Beware of the Horses!"

As he turned to enter the shop, Joe found the signs referred to horses all right but not to horsemeat. He's still trying to pin that one on somebody.

Wins Leniency In Stabbing

John McCue, 65, today pleaded guilty in common pleas court to a charge of maliciously cutting Claudia Brady, a nurse at the county home, last May 9 and was placed on probation for one year.

A former inmate of the county home, McCue was carried into the common pleas courtroom and was removed in Wappners ambulance following his arraignment.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch heard three physicians give medical statements on McCue's condition in court this morning.

McCue was placed on probation after a nephew said that arrangement could be made to get him in a rest home at Fifth avenue and the Ashland road.

McCue inflicted multiple wounds on the 56-year-old nurse with a small-bladed knife and then jumped through the window of his second-story room in an attempt at suicide after the nurse was reported to have ordered him to clean his quarters, officers said.

Lake Coal Docks Top All Records

CLEVELAND—(AP)— Lake Erie's 13 coal-loading docks marked up the first 2,000,000-ton weekly workout in history during the seven-day period ended July 29, the ore and coal exchange reported today.

During the week the docks from Toledo to Buffalo placed 2,010,417 net tons of bituminous coal on ships of the Great Lakes freighter fleet—1,964,455 as cargo and 45,962 to fuel the ships. The old mark was 1,912,500 tons, set in week ended Oct. 27, 1941.

Campers Play Make-Believe

Friendly House campers at Hidden Hollow spent a day in the land of make-believe yesterday as they dressed in costumes portraying characters from favorite children's stories and played appropriate games and contests during the day.

The campers were divided into four groups:"Heides," who were attired in tyrolean hats and suspenders, or Swiss lace aprons and caps; "Arabian Nights," wearing high turbans, gold earrings and sabers, or half veils and gold ornaments; "Tom Sawyers" and "Becky Thatchers" with straw hats and fishing poles or sunbonnets and colored sashes; and "Pinocchios" with peaked caps, ruffs at the neck and long noses.

Campers closed the day with each story-book group portraying the parts of their favorites in plays.

VOTE INCREASE FOR JAIL FOOD

Commissioners Allow Hike of 16 Cents Per Day For County Prisoners.

Richland county commissioners yesterday authorized an increase of 16 cents per day in the rations of county prisoners. Chairman C. L. Shoup reported today.

It now costs the county $1 per day to feed each prisoner in the jail.

This is the maximum allowable by law, Shoup said.

Since the first of the year the county has been paying 84 cents for feeding the prisoners, which was also an increase from 75 cents paid last year.

Mrs. Goldie Matuch who cooks for the prisoners said that it was hardly possible to feed the prisoners for 84 cents per day with the present high cost of food.

A survey of five or six adjoining counties made by Sheriff Frank A. Robinson showed that they were already paying $1 per day for the ration of county prisoners.

Woman Confesses Abduction 'Hoax'

PLACERVILLE, Calif. —(AP)— Mrs. Barbara Walker, 23-year-old mother, found working as a waitress at a Lake Tahoe resort a week after a mysterious disappearance from a picnic in New Hampshire, said today she ran away from domestic trouble. She denied her earlier story that she had been abducted.

"I thought maybe if I left mysteriously it would help bring my family back together. My husband told me he never wanted to see me again." At North Conway, N. H., her husband, Langdon Walker, said he was ready to "forgive and forget."

WYNN WINS BRIDE

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. —(U.P.)— Comedian Ed Wynn, 60, today was honeymooning with Dorothy Elizabeth Nesbitt, 41, whom he married in Las Vegas, Nev. It was the second marriage for the noted screwball of stage, screen and radio, whose first wife died in 1940. His bride is the divorced wife of John White of New York.

Urges Support of Independent Merchants In Talk to Kiwanis

Condemning big business monopoly as a threat to the average worker, Desmond Walker, president of Local 17, United Rubber Workers of America, urged widespread patronage of Mansfield independent dealers for "greater benefit of both customers and community" before Kiwanis members at noon today.

Walker spoke on the subject, "The Independent Businessman and Labor" at the regular luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Quoting from a report made by the smaller War Plants corporation to the U. S. senate last month, Walker said that 75,000 persons, comprising .06 per cent of the total population, own one-half of all the corporate stock in the country.

"Ownership of the largest 200 non-financial corporations is concentrated in the top one per cent of stockholders, who hold 60 per cent of the common stock. These figures refute the much-advertised claim that ownership of American corporations is widely diversified," Walker said.

He charged: "Big business has also moved in on atomic power.

"The government handed out a total of almost one billion dollars worth of research contracts during the war, two-thirds of which went to the 68 top corporations in the U. S. and nearly two-fifths going to the top 10. The NAM is now trying to have congress turn over atomic power patents to private ownership—with no government restrictions nor any provisions for protection of the public," Walker said.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. —Adv.

Whoop-de-doo! Senate Probe Has Drama Just Like Movies

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

WASHINGTON — (LP) — Now we've got drama and excitement and G-men; whoop-de-do in the U. S. senate exactly as in the movies, and all I know still is that Congressman John Coffee of Washington took the $2,500.

He didn't report it as income to the tax collector, because it was a gift. Neither did he mention it to his fellow congressmen, because he got it in a year when he wasn't campaigning for re-election.

So there was the gum-chewing James P. McGranery, assistant to the attorney general, testifying before the senate war investigating committee that he told J. Edgar Hoover to call off his sleuths because the statute of limitations has run its course. More than three years had passed since the Tacoma contractor slipped the congressman the dough. Here comes the drammer:

"But had it not been for the statute of limitation, you would have pressed the case?" demanded Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan.

"Oh yes, I would have given it to the grand jury," said McGranery, still chomping his spearmint.

"That's evidence enough for me," snapped Sen. Ferguson "You believe a crime was committed"

"Oh, no," cried a man on the sidelines: the congressman, himself, exploding a lung full of cigaret smoke and causing his technicolor necktie to loop outside his coat as he jumped up to splutter:

"You are asking Mr. McGranery to judge the case"

McGranery said he did not mean to judge it. Sen. Ferguson said he'd asked no such thing and that was the climax to a day of such arguments as these old ears seldom have heard.

It's odd how explosive a subject politics can be; the boys get red in the face and yell. The day's principal witness was the congressman's ex-secretary Paul A. Olson, who looked like a young man of distinction with the four points of his handkerchief peeping from the breast pocket of his well-pressed gray-plaid suit.

Sen. Ferguson accused him in so many words of breaking the criminal code by accepting the $2,500 from Contractor Eivind Anderson and handing it to the congressman.

"Sir," said Olson in a voice that almost reached the volume of a scream, "if that was a crime, then I suggest you investigate the thousands of other crimes. Look into the crimes committed by the du-Ponts, the Pews, everybody else who contributed to the Republicans."

Sen. Ferguson said this was no place for a political speech, but that if Olson insisted on making one, he might better list the wartime contributions made to the Democratic party.

Things went on from there, with yelping and exploding flash bulbs and enough confusion to make the cops jump to attention. I covered my face with my arms, in case the furniture began to fly, and opened one eye.

All I could see was that superlative cravat of Congressman Coffee. It was striped horizontally in red, yellow, blue, green, orange and brown A denizen of the press table at my right muttered. "Coffee is boiling."

I guess he was. I tip-toed out of there while I still was in one piece.

ASKS CHILDREN TO STAY AWAY

Jehovah's Witnesses Warned of Polio Outbreak in Cleveland Area.

CLEVELAND — (NS) — Delegates to the international convention of Jehovah's Witnesses beginning Sunday have been warned by health authorities not to bring their children to Cleveland because of the current outbreak of infantile paralysis in the area.

City Health Commissioner Harold J. Knapp asked local representatives of the Watchtower Bible and Tract society to pass the word along after the polio count in Cuyahoga county rose to 65, with eight deaths so far this year.

Members of the religious sect and their families were converging on Cleveland, with an expected gathering of 60,000 or more by the time the meeting gets under way.

Approximately one-third of the visitors will be quartered in a trailer camp and tent city while the others have arranged for rooms in private homes.

"When any communicable disease is prevalent, we discourage gatherings and crowds of all sorts," the health commissioner said. "I have asked the leaders of the Watchtower group to discourage their members from bringing children to Cleveland."

TRUMAN ORDERS MISSION HOME

President Wants to Confer in Person on Ticklish Palestine Problem.

WASHINGTON —(NS)— President Truman Wednesday directed the cabinet committee on Palestine, which has been conferring with British government officials on the Palestine problem in London, to return to Washington.

A White House statement said that the chief executive was taking the step "in view of the complexity" of the proposals put forth at London on the Palestine problem.

He directed Henry F Grady, head of the group, and his associates "to return to Washington to discuss the whole matter with him in detail."

The White House statement said that the president has had under consideration "certain recommendations" of the committee growing out of the discussions in London.

The statement added:

"The president hopes that further discussions will result in decisions which will alleviate the situation of the persecuted Jews in Europe and at the same time contribute to the ultimate solution of the longer term problem of Palestine."

BUILD UTILITIES ANNEX

SHELBY—Work has been started by Friebel and Hartman, local contractors, on the $91,000 annex to the light and power plant to house the $141,000 boiler, according to the Shelby utilities superintendent, J. P. Adkins.

The boiler contract is with Babcock and Wilcox, of Cleveland. Delay in obtaining structural steel is expected to postpone completion of the building until winter.

Murray Garsson was the Washington lobbyist for "Dutch" Schultz in many enterprises. . . . He finagled to have the gangster's income tax deficits "squared". . . . Garsson took his assignments for Schultz from "Dixie" Davis, the lawyer later disbarred. . . . Among his political sponsors was the powerful Jimmy Hines, ex-blacksmith, Tammany boss and New Deal patronage dispenser for Manhattan, who recently was paroled from Sing Sing, where he did a stretch for protecting Schultz's policy racket . . . WESTBROOK PEGLER . . .

NEW YORK — The disclosure that Murray Garsson at one time had full charge of the investigation of immigration frauds with power to shake down aliens, including moving picture actors from other countries, and blackmail Hollywood producers, directs attention to the opportunity for extortion and discrimination in the selection of immigrants and visitors now and in the last ten years.

During the war, the state department and the house committee on foreign affairs conspired to keep secret the number of refugees who had been permitted to come here both as quota immigrants and in the false guise of visitors. The practice lately has been to circumvent the law by a clever little trick having, in the memorable phrase of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, the color of legality, but not the character.

If this trick was not invented for the special benefit of the wife of Earl Browder, who had been ordered deported to Russia, its application to her problem was the first notorious instance.

She was allowed to go to Canada and the consular authorities were ordered to approve her request for re-entry as a quota case regardless of their objections.

The secrecy gave rise to many rumors as to "hordes" of refugees. A few weeks ago, the committee released from its confidential record a statement of Brekenridge Long, a new dealer and an assistant secretary of state, made to the committee on Nov. 26, 1943, which now shows that these rumors, although they were only conjecture, did not exaggerate.

Mr. Long said that "in the period from 1938 to 1942 a total of over 307,000 visas of all kinds were granted to persons coming from enemy or enemy occupied territory" and that 580,000 refugees were actually admitted between the "beginning of the Hitler regime" and the date of his statement.

He said the state department was bound "more or less" by the law in granting immigrant visas and explained how those who came on temporary visas could become permanent immigrants under the quotas of the countries they came from. "A number of them have gone to Canada, Mexico and Cuba," he said, "and have applied for re-entry to the United States."

Mr. Long said there came a time in his service as the supervisor of the refugee traffic when it was necessary to sift the applicants to keep out secret agents of the Nazi government posing as victims of its oppression. This was done to "protect the security of the United States."

But again it must be noted that no precautions are mentioned against the admission of Communists who, today, in obedience to the new "line" from Moscow must have become active conspirators against the American government. And now, for the first time, the American citizen paid the "expenses of bringing thousands of them to Mexico."

Mr. Long touched on the opportunities for graft by consular agents abroad when he said that applicants put money into their passports when they called for visas. He did not have to say that rich individuals and organizations in the United States would be willing to pay large amounts to Bureaucrats, such as Murray Garsson was, for visas for individuals in whom they might be interested.

Although it was wise to keep secret some parts of Mr. Long's statement, revealing current and future plans for rescue and other matters that might have helped the Nazis frustrate the work, the figures up to that time were suppressed to deceive the American people not the Nazis who doubtless knew within a few thousand how many had come here and who they were.

And, today, in the face of the fact that 580,000 have been admitted as long ago as November, 1943. And many thousands have come here since, the United States is constantly berated for hesitating to coerce the British in their Palestine problem and American soldiers are attached by "displaced persons" in Germany who owe their very lives to American soldiers.

HAL BOYLE . . .

NUERNBERG, Germany—(AP)—Shipwreck Kelly had nothing on the eight judges of the International Military tribunal:

He never sat for eight months on a bench without a working day off. The judges have.

Since last Nov. 20, no member of the tribunal has been absent from the courtroom in the case of humanity versus 21 men and a ghost. The ghost is Martin Bormann, Hitler's twilight deputy, who is believed dead and is being tried in absentia anyway just in case he turns up later among the living.

The 21 men, of course, are Hermann Goering and a score of other prominent ex-salesmen of the swastika. Despite their long training in Nazi party bombast they have shown marked lack of endurance in weathering the flood of more than 4,000,000 words spoken into the official record since the trial began.

"The defendants don't always appear, but the judges always do," said Anne Kesshan, Chicago, who has supervised the pressroom from the beginning.

"The defendants can go to sleep in court, too, and the judges can't. Sometimes they look as if they might be nodding. But then they pop up with a question that shows they're right on the ball. I've never caught one napping yet."

This judicial record of perfect attendance is made more remarkable by the fact that the judges from America, Britain, and France are all in their elder years. The two Russians are the freshmen of the bench in point of age.

As the trial winds wordily toward an expected verdict in September some 1,500 persons and nine electric mimeograph machines —are still kept busy turning justice's lethargic wheels.

"Of course it's tapered off a good bit now," said Miss Kessan. "Many more were employed at the start of the trial."

The transcript of testimony and argument now runs about 14,000 pages, and is increasing at better than a hundred pages a day.

Indicative of the failing world interest in this eventful but snail-paced drama is the shrinkage of the correspondents' corps from 300 newsmen representing 23 countries to 75 men and women from eight countries. Britain has the largest representation.

There were 249,827 words of news copy filed the day Justice Robert Jackson, the American prosecutor, made his opening statement. On July 1 the daily file dropped to 1,200 words. Throughout the trial it has averaged about 65,000 words.

All 21 defendants are still enjoying their American-made calories in reasonable health, but the trial has resulted in some attrition of the tribunal's personnel. One court interpreter and a Polish newspaperman died, a public relations officer succumbed of a heart attack and a Russian prosecutor killed himself while cleaning his revolver.

It should be chronicled, as a footnote to the old theory that crime never pays around a courtroom, that one German kitchen employe was apprehended leaving the scene with his coat lining stuffed with coffee. On the other hand, one correspondent complains that the gasoline was stolen from his jeep in daylight—"broad daylight," he said—while it was in a parking lot 50 feet from the military police's pass inspection post under the court windows.

This mystery has yet to be referred to the tribunal.

LUCAS MOVES TO RETAIN ITS PHONE SERVICE

200 Patrons of Firm Name a Fact-Finding Group to Meet With Utilities Group.

LUCAS — Approximately 200 patrons of the Lucas Telephone company, ordered sold by common pleas court this week, gave W. E. Darling, the receiver, and the remaining operators a vote of confidence last night and named a seven-man fact finding committee to meet Friday with the Ohio utilities commission as a first step to preserve the company's service through community action.

A committee to procure operators, two of whom have resigned since the court order, also was named.

R. N. McMichael was elected chairman of the fact-finding group. Others named were W. S. Barger, Louis Bromfield, E. Dean Byerly, E. C. Culler, Ralph Mengert, and Dale Peterson.

The procurement group will act until August 10, when it is expected some definite organization will be effected if the company has not been sold. Darling, who was released this week as receiver, has agreed to remain until that date.

Mrs. Paul J. Lee, Mrs. Beatrice Renard, and Sam Chamberlin comprise the procurement group.

CONGRESS OK'S TERMINAL PAY

$3,000,000,000 Bill Is Ready For Truman's Signature; Payment in Bonds.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The $3,000,000,000 GI terminal pay bill headed for President Truman's desk today as house members laid plans to get around its "payment in bonds" provision early next year.

The measure cleared both chambers of congress yesterday. Acting last, the house contented itself for the present with denouncing the senate-inspired bond-payment plan. Members were afraid to reject it lest the legislation get lost in controversy during the closing days of the session.

From both sides of the aisle came demands that the new congress, convening next January, enact a bill permitting holders of the bonds to cash them immediately instead of waiting the required five years from date of discharge.

Many solons called the bond plan discrimination against GI's, since officers have been receiving their terminal pay in cash.

President Truman himself advanced the bond provision, describing it as less-inflationary than straight cash payments.

Rep. Dwight L. Rogers (D-Fla), co-author of the furlough pay bill, announced he would introduce on the first day of the new congress a bill to allow the bonds to be converted into cash immediately.

Ex-OSR Inmate Confesses He Took $102, Police Say.

Arrested in Tulsa, Okla., and returned to Mansfield, Paul L. Brown, 23, of 178 North Mulberry street, today had confessed to the theft July 9 of $102 from A. L. Sheaffer, 257 Orange street, police said.

In a signed confession, Brown said that he took about $102 from a locker at the National Ice company after he had helped Shaeffer unload ice there three weeks ago, police said. Officers added, however, that some $120 was reported taken.

SETTLE CASES OUT OF COURT

Parties Reach Agreement in Two Actions For Total of $75,495.

Two damage actions, seeking a total of $75,495 in Richland county common pleas court, had been settled out of court today, entries showed. Amounts of the settlements were not revealed.

One petition, for $50,000, was filed by Clarence Riffle against the Service Taxi company, Mansfield. Riffle sought damages for injuries allegedly received when he fell as he leaped aside to avoid being struck by one of the defendant's taxicabs, on Nov. 12, 1943. Riffle was on duty as a flagman at the North Main street crossing of B. and O. railroad when the accident occurred.

Also settled out of court was an action filed Oct. 1, 1942 by Edith Rae Ensminger, administratrix of the estate of Arthur B. Ensminger, against Motor Cargo, Inc.

The plaintiff asked $25,495 judgment following the auto-traffice death of Arthur B. Ensminger.

Ensminger was killed when he stopped his car to avoid hitting another car which had been wrecked at the Erie railroad underpass on U. S. Route 30-S on Dec. 5, 1941, and one of the defendant's trucks crashed into his car and knocked him to the pavement the plaintiff's petition alleged.

1,500 TROOPS DUE

More than 1,500 service personnel are due to debark from the transport Chilton today at San Francisco. The vessel, which is arriving from Kwajalein, is the only troop carrying ship scheduled to arrive at U. S. ports.

8,250 Visit Tappan Plant On Its 65th Anniversary

Approximately 8,250 persons were shown through the Tappan Stove company plant yesterday afternoon and evening as the company celebrated its 65th anniversary with "open house."

Telegrams and letters of congratulations from all over the country were showered upon the company on its anniversary.

Visitors to the plant got a first-hand view of stove manufacturing as they followed an orange line on the floor through all 10 major departments of the plant from the foundry where castings are made to assembly and crating and shipping rooms where the finished product is received.

Information booths were conveniently located in each department and staffed with a department worker to answer any questions on manufacture of the Tappan gas range.

Guests first were shown the cast mounting department where castings are drilled as they come from the foundry which was visited following a trip to the cleaning and polishing department.

After visiting the raw steel department and stockrooms, guests were guided through the enameling and welding departments before being shown through press and paint departments. Brief stops at the assembly, final inspection and crating departments completed the tour of the factory.

Expect 2,000 at Picnic Next Week

Mansfield employes of the Ohio Fuel Gas company and their families will join those of other towns in the northeast section of the company's territory for an all-day picnic at Chippewa lake next Wednesday. The Mansfield office of the Gas company will be closed on that day, G. K. Schooler, district manager, said.

The outing was an annual event before the war. More than 2,000 are expected to attend.

In addition to swimming and boating, there will be free amusement rides for the children, an amateur show and other entertainment and numerous contests. There will be dancing in the afternoon.

SOVIET PURGE HITS INDUSTRY

Officials Get Prison Terms in Sweeping Drive Against Dishonesty, Bribery.

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Soviet prosecutors, pressing a purge of industry throughout Russia, were reported today to have sent many local officials to prison for long terms.

The newspaper Pravda reported progress in the contrywide campaign against corruption and bribery in Soviet industry. At the same time the communist organ blamed the tie-in between party and military leadership for faked industrial and agricultural production figures which Pravda indicated had developed on a big scale.

The chief of a housing district in Moscow, a woman named N. Ignatova was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment and a woman inspector to eight years for taking bribes up to 3,000 rubles for illegally assigning rooms, Pravda said.

I. Zakharov, official of a Leningrad trust, was sentenced to six years for issuing fictitious travel orders enabling persons not connected with the trust to travel in various parts of the country.

A. Sidenko, cashier at the Kherson railroad station, was sentenced to eight years for the illegal sale of 71 railroad tickets, for which he received 25,000 rubles.

I. Suchevo, superintendent of a railroad station on the Kalinin line, was sentenced to seven years and his property was confiscated for illegally assigning freight cars.

M. T. Anokina, woman cashier at the Krasnoyarsk river port in Siberia, was sentenced to five years for the illegal sale of 13 tickets.

Shelby Man Gets Jail Sentence

BOUNDARY TROUBLE—

The United Nations isn't the only outfit plagued with boundary disputes. Yesterday about 7 p. m. police received a report that there was "trouble" on Central avenue. A cruiser, carrying three officers, was dispatched. The "trouble" turned out to be two neighbors arguing over a dividing line between their lots. Police told them to "see a surveyor."

NEWS 44 YEARS AGO—

Happenings of a bygone era came to life in the news room of the News-Journal yesterday, when a letter was received from Mrs. Alice Warren of California. The letter contained a miniature of the old Mansfield News, dated Jan. 8, 1902, which had been the property of Mrs. Warren's father, who recently died in the western state. While going through his effects, she came across the miniature, so she sent it along with a note saying she thought we "might be interested." The miniature was in the form of a small pamphlet, which was used as a promotional stunt for the old "News."

CUPID LOAFING—

If Dan Cupid was working overtime in Richland county during June when 117 marriage licenses were granted, then he must have been loafing last month when 81 were recorded. The number of couples who started homes last month was still greater than those who decided to call it quits. These couples filed 64 divorce petitions, only two less than the number filed during June. Last month's figures boosted the total since the first of the year to 592 marriage licenses and 447 divorce applications.

TELLS USE OF CANNON

DAYTON —(AP)— Radar-aimed cannon in American Air Force planes made possible wholesale destruction of Japanese shipping on the Yangtze river during the war, Wright field officers disclosed yesterday. The airborne range finder, known as "The Falcon," was used to fire 75-millimeter cannon accurately from distances up to 5,000 yards.

NEXT STEP IN HOME PROGRAM UP TO COUNCIL

Grace, Hedges Street Areas Called 'Ideal' For 76 Additional Units.

Mansfield was virtually assured of 76 more veterans' housing units today following approval by a federal housing official of two sites within the city for the temporary apartments.

Pending final approval of topography maps by the government and appropriation by city council of funds for the housing, the units are to be located on Grace street and at Diamond and Hedges streets.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said that E. J. Truthan, of the Federal Housing Authority examined both sites yesterday and described them as "excellent".

The one at Diamond and Hedges streets, which is Childrens' home property, "especially appealed to him", Vaughn said, "because of its trees" and semi-rural setting.

But both were approved because of the proximity of utilities lines and schools, Vaughn said. The Grace street site, between Dewey avenue and Cherry street, is particularly suitable because it will require no grading and has main utility lines on three sides, the mayor said.

Vaughn said that the next step will have to be taken by council in approving funds for the preparation of topography maps. The federal agency requires the maps so that it can prepare plans for the structures.

The 76 units will augment 74 others now under construction near Mifflin. These also are provided by the government, but are being sponsored by the McVey Post, American Legion. The city will have to sponsor the new units and provide for land leasing and utilities extensions where required.

On the Grace street lot it is expected that six units, including 24 apartments, will be erected while the balance will be set up on the Diamond-Hedges site.

Taking part in the survey of the Diamond-Hedges site yesterday, besides Truthan and Vaughn, were the county commissioners.

Approximately one-half mile of State Route 39 and 96 in Shelby will be included in a bridge and road repair project by the state highway department this fall.

Perry T. Ford, state highway director, said today that bids will be opened Aug. 20 on 21 state projects, which are estimated to total $898,000.

The Shelby routes will be resurfaced with asphaltic concrete at the engineering estimate of $12,400. Completion date has been set for Oct. 31, 1946.

Columbus Drops Mansfield From State Tourney, 7-5

Hal Clawson

Marlin Kindinger is our boy!

As Mansfield gradually returned to normalcy today following yesterday's fifth running of the Soap Box Derby, Marlin's name was on the lips of just about everyone.

Elsewhere in the paper you'll read how Marlin piloted his white streamlined racer to the city title at Derby Downs on South Main street yesterday afternoon.

It is, without doubt, the greatest thrill the young fellow has ever experienced. But he'll get others when he competes in the national finals at Akron on Sunday, Aug. 18

Everyone in Mansfield and surrounding cities will keep an eye on Marlin and will be pulling for him to come through with national honors.

I don't think anyone of the five thousand or so people who witnessed the derby got any more excited about it than this writer.

It was interesting to study the expression on the faces of the young drivers as they neared the finish line. Some of them looked a little more serious than others, but all were out to win.

The fact that every boy had the opportunity to display his engineering and racing skill is something of which the sponsors of the race are happy.

To Don Cram of the YMCA should go the sincere congratulations of everyone for the manner in which the derby was conducted. There was nary a hitch throughout the afternoon's program.

Furs Defeat Chips, 11-1

Two forfeits were marked up in the Independent softball loop last night while Klein Furs were gaining and easy 11-1 victory over Num Num Potato Chips in the lone game played.

Safety Cab remained one-half game in front of the Furs getting a forfeit win over the DAV while Shell Oil won in the same manner from Mansfield Hardware.

Vogel made his first league start in the box for the Furs and came through with a three-hitter. He fanned six.

Berry was clubbed for 16 hits.

Hummel and Waldman led the winners with home runs.

Durocher's Strategy Backfires -- Cards Win

Birds Pound Joe Hatten For 10-3 Win; Feller Hurls 20th Win Beating Bosox.

By JOE REICHLER, AP Sports Writer.

The best laid plans of mice and men go astray now and then, as Leo Durocher, masterminding manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is ready to admit today.

The loquacious Leo, whose managerial moves have pulled many a game out of the fire this year, saw his latest bit of strategy backfire on him yesterday as the second place St. Louis Cardinals belabored Southpaw Joe Hatten and two successors for 15 hits and a 10-3 victory over the National league leaders..

The Card triumph evened the "crucial" series between the two contenders and once again the Brooks' lead stands at two and a half games with the rubber contest to be played today.

Before the important three-game tussle, Durocher announced he would switch from his original pitching nominee, Hatten to Rube Melton, a non-winner up to then, to work the opener if Eddie Dyer's, selection was Howie Pollet, the Cards' ace.

"I figure if Pollet, who already has licked us three times, is right, he will be tough to beat," philosophised The Lip, "so why should I waste my top hurler? Hatten figures to beat any other St. Louis starter. If we're lucky with Melton in the first, we should grab the first two quick and set them back on their heels."

Leo's luck appeared more pronounced than ever when Melton, having one of his rare good days, outpitched Pollet Tuesday night to skyrocket Brooklyn's lead to three and a half games. And with Hatten, fully rested, on tap, the experts were ready to award Durocher another "E" for efficiency

So what happened? Hatten got his ears pinned back, and Murry Dickson, recently elevated from relief roles, held the Brooks at bay while the Redbirds pounded out their biggest hit total in four weeks.

The Card-Dodger tussle partly overshadowed Bobby Feller's scintillating one-hit pitching exhibition against the Boston Red Sox as he registered his 20th victory by twirling the Cleveland Indians to a 4-1 victory.

The Detroit Tigers replaced the New York Yankees as Boston's closest rival by defeating the Bronxites 6-0 to wrest second place from their victims by one percentage point. Both teams trail the Red Sox by 12½ games.

Big Al Benton, making his first start since May 5, hurled the shutout as Hank Greenberg, Dick Wakefield and Birdie Tebbetts backed him with home runs. It was number 24 for Greenberg to place him four behind leader Ted Williams of the Red Sox.

Claude Passeau, recuperating from an ailing back which had sidelined him for almost two weeks, pitched the third place Chicago Cubs to an 8-1 victory over the New York Giants under the Polo Grounds lights.

A triple to the right field corner by Connie Ryan scored Nanny Fernandez from first base with the winning run in the ninth inning as the Boston Braves edged out the cellar-dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1.

After dropping six straight in Shibe park, the Cincinnati Reds turned about and downed the Philadelphia Phillies twice, 4-3 and 2-0. Three Philly errors enabled the Reds to win the opener in the 11th inning while Ewell Blackwell, although needing help from Harry Gumbert in the ninth, gained his fourth shutout win in the nightcap.

Helped by Bob Kennedy's fourth home run, the Chicago White Sox scored three times in the ninth inning to come from behind and defeat the Philadelphia Athletics 3-2 Four hits and an error produced four runs in the eighth inning for the St. Louis Browns, enough to beat the Washington Senators 6-2

Doerr Again Robs Bob of No-Hitter

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Bob Feller knows how well history can repeat itself.

Back in 1939, in Boston's Fenway park, Red Sox Second Baseman Bobby Doerr delivered a single to spoil the Cleveland's fireballer's bid for a no-hit game.

Yesterday at League park the Boston infielder came through with what turned out to be the only base blow the pennant-bound easterners collected as the Indians spanked the Sox 4 to 1.

So if the swinging Doerr had been a little less stubborn at the plate, Feller today would be the author of four no-hitters.

Bob's performance yesterday did gain him another place in the record books, however. The triumph was the seventh one-hitter of his career and, coupled with his pair of no-hitters, matched the major league record for the most no-hit and one-hit accomplishments compiled by another Cleveland immortal, Addie Joss.

* * *

The win also marked the fourth time in his career that Feller has compiled 20 victories. His record now stands at 20-6. Bob fanned nine Bosox to hike his total to 239 for 321⅓ innings.

Feller also distinguished himself at the plate, smacking a triple that drove in two runs in the second inning.

Bob derived particular satisfaction from one of his strikeouts yesterday because he nailed Ted Williams for the first time this season.

Best Trotters Go Tonight

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—(AP)— Twelve of the nation's best trotters will go to the post tonight in the two dashes of $5,000 Arden stakes, main event on the grand circuit card at the Saratoga raceway.

E. J Baker's Algiers from North Brook, Ill., and Charles Munn's president-elect from Jackson, Mich., are looked upon by horsemen as the pair to beat over the mile.

A co-feature tonight will be the third head of the championship stallion stakes for three year olds, postponed last night after rain made the track unsafe.

Two contenders for the $50,000 Hambletonian next Wednesday at Goshen, Ballad and Onolee Hanover, won the first and second heats, respectively, last night.

Ballad, bay filly, owned by Thomas Thomas of Cleveland, won the first heat of the $5,645 event in 2.08¼, with Frank Ervin driving. She paid $7.30.

Onolee Hanover, a bay filly owned by C. M. Saunders of Toledo, Ohio, finished second in this heat and then took the second dash in 2:14¼ over a muddy track, paying $4.20. Ballad faded to sixth.

Deborah Hanover, owned and driven by Wendell Wathen of Fort Fairfield, Me., captured both heats of the two-year-old trotting club stakes for pacing fillies.

Title Scrap Set For New York

NEW YORK —(AP)— Joe Louis and Tami Mauriello will do their fighting for the heavyweight title in Yankee Stadium here Sept. 18 —not in Detroit.

Promoter Mike Jacobs said he had decided against switching the fight to the champion's home town, despite the fact he has two other title bouts scheduled in the same ball park in September.

The promoter had considered the possibility of making the switch after Michigan Boxing commissioner John Hettche assured him the bout would be a sellout in Detroit.

Locals Lose After Holding 5-3 Lead

Star Columbus Pitcher Holds Durant's Nine to Three Hits; Frisbee Loser.

DELAWARE, O.—Mansfield's American Legion Junior baseball club had victory snatched out of its hands here yesterday morning and thereby dropped from the state Legion tourney.

After taking an 11-1 setback at the hands of Cincinnati Tuesday afternoon, the Mansfielders came back yesterday to take their second defeat, 7-5.

Leading 5-3 going into the last of the seventh, Coach Dewey Durant's nine fell apart at the seams, committing two errors with the sacks loaded letting four runs come in.

It was a heart-breaker for the Mansfielders to loss since they had Earl "Lefty" Davis, star pitcher for Columbus Linden McKinley high, beaten up until that seventh frame. He allowed but three hits.

For the third straight game the Durantmen faced a southpaw hurler.

Swank, Meeting and Worthley collected singles for the losers while Potts and Zoog had two hits each for the Columbus club.

Today's competition will narrow the tournament down to two or three teams.

Cincinnati and Cleveland, both unbeaten, are the favorites. Springfield was to play Columbus and Zanesville meets Akron in this morning's games. Losers here will drop out.

The winners will be paired with Cleveland and Cincinnati this afternoon at 3:30 after these two powerful nine have met at 1:30.

Don Smith, Ross Frisbee and Dick Flockencier shared the mound duties for the Mansfield nine.

Church, Communism In Gruelling Battle

France, Italy, Facing Many Problems In Common, Might Eventually Turn Rivalry to Friendship.

PARIS — (UP) — France and Italy, at loggerheads for half a century, today face many common problems, solution of which paradoxically may lead to friendship and cooperation between these nations.

It is in these two countries with roughly 42,000,000 persons each that the Catholic church and Communism are having a gruelling daily battle.

The contest extends to many other European countries but the issue is perhaps more sharply drawn in these neighboring western European powers.

Reds Losing Ground.

During recent weeks, as evidenced by elections, Communism either was checked or lost ground.

But France as well as Italy must obtain genuine assistance from Communist parties, one of three leading political groups in both countries. The Communists through strikes and non-participation in national governments could sabotage the entire recovery effort.

Italy and France in common with many parts of Europe face food shortages, fantastically high prices, lack of clothes and houses and inadequate transport.

France like Italy, seeks a stable government to permit the application of recovery programs. Both countries suffered heavy ravages of war. Communications and transport were hard hit. Both countries lack highly efficient modern industrial setups.

Of the two nations France, in raw materials, territorial and colonial possessions and agricultural production, was vastly more wealthy but suffers from the effects of a drift toward near bankruptcy in prewar years, plus the corruption of feeble French governments almost continually between the two world wars.

War Costly.

France and Italy, probably more so France, show clearly the effects of the madness of war. Europeans spent 10 of the last 30 years killing each other, preparing to kill or trying to overcome the destruction, dislocation or exhaustion war causes. France three times in 70 years became a European battlefield.

France and Italy both have gigantic black markets in operation. Both have currencies which still are far from stable and which many of their own citizens distrust.

Both countries have become highly nationalistic. This tendency in Italy is expected to become more pronounced if the peace conference enforces a treaty on Italy which virtually prevents recovery and lowers still more the standard of living.

As a result of recent elections in both countries, liberals and the center are winning new power, and confidence is returning, even if slowly. In France there appears some will to work—a will lacking for so many years.

But France urgently needs modern methods and up-to-date machinery which the recent American loan is expected to provide to some degree

HERD RATED HIGHLY

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Ralph Tugend and son, Jeromesville, have recently had their herd inspected and classified for type by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. The inspection was conducted by Clair I. Miller of Medina, and one was designated "very good"—the second highest score an animal can receive; and two scored "good plus." The type classification, combined with a production testing program, is used as a means of proving sires and locating outstanding brood cow families in an owner's herd.
